Los Angeles Air Liner Missing in Utah

NO WORD OF SHIP SINCE 2:27 A.M.

Six Aboard Plane Which
For Salt Lake City

SALT LAKE CITY. (AP)—Officials of Western Air Express, operators of a big transport plane unreported since 2:27 a. m., mountain standard time, expressed belief today the craft had made a forced landing in Southwestern Utah.

A searching plane sent out from Salt Lake City early today returned after a short flight with reports long hanging clouds obscured visibility from the air.

A conference of airmen and company officials was called immediately to plan a ground search in the region of Milford, in Beaver county.

LAST HEARD FROM AT 2:23 A.M.

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Western Air Express officials announced today that an eastbound transport airplane with four passengers and a crew of three has been unreported since 2:27 a. m., Pacific standard time.

At 2:23 a. m., they said, Pilot S. J. Samson radioed he was over Milford, Utah, and said "everything O. K."

Four minutes later he reported he was at an altitude of 10,000 feet with "high overcast." Nothing further has been heard from the big plane.

Passengers Named

Aboard the plane, which left here at 11:15 p. m. last night, in addition to Samson, are William Bogen, co-pilot, Gladys Witt, stewardess, and the passengers, Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfe of Chicago; H. W. Edwards, who bought a ticket for Salt Lake City, and C. Christopher of Dwight, Ill.

Miss Witt was formerly the chief stewardess of the air line. She resigned her post recently to marry and flew to Kansas City with two men claiming her hand, James Roe, a pilot, and Erik Balzar. The upshot of a romantic mixup was that Miss Witt remained single, returning here, and three days later was hired again as a stewardess.

Alvin Adams, president of Western Air Express, and Allan Barrie, vice-president, issued a statement here saying that they believed the transport was down at an isolated airfield, its radio not working.

Passenger Official

They said trucks have been sent out from three points in Utah to search for it, the hunt centering at Milford, Delta, and Salt Lake City.

Rain started falling in Los Angeles yesterday afternoon continuing throughout the night. But airline officials said weather conditions between Milford and Salt Lake City were good.

Samson, the pilot, had seven years' experience, 7000 hours in the air, and ranks fifth on the company's seniority list. The co-pilot formerly flew with the army. Wolfe, one of the passengers, is an official of United Airlines.

The plane started out with six passengers, but two got off at Las Vegas, Nev. They are Mrs. F. Johnson and E. G. Mitchell, both of Los Angeles.

Air line officials said that Fred Kelly took off at daylight from Salt Lake, circled about, and returned without finding any trace of the missing transport.

Joe Pipp's Pipe Dream— Prosperity by March 19

PATERSON, N. J. (AP)—Joe Pipp has gone back to bed and set the alarm clock for March 19.

He said a crystal gazer told him that if he remained in bed until that day, his 37th birthday, he would arise to find prosperity is back.

So Joe, a sports promoter, went to bed Nov. 23 and stayed there three weeks, varying the monotony with an occasional blast on his cornet.

His hibernation was interrupted, however, by a fire in his restaurant downstairs.

A whole 24 hours on his feet was too much for Joe. He consulted the crystal gazer again, heard the prosperity formula repeated, and crawled back between the sheets last night.

CHURCH HEAD PLAYED FOR CRITICISM

Canterbury Target For Protests Over Attack
On Abducted King

LONDON. (AP)—Criticism from the pulpit and the press was heaped upon the Archbishop of Canterbury today for his verbal chastisement of former King Edward VIII.

Indications were the matter would reach the floor of the house of commons Thursday.

The latest repercussions of the abdication of Edward sprang up to embarrass an officialdom striving to smooth the path for George VI, his successor.

The Archbishop, spiritual leader of the empire, in a broadcast Sunday sternly lectured the former ruler for his desire to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson in violation of the "Christian principle of marriage."

Strong Dissent

Scornfully the head of the Church of England placed part of the blame for the king's conduct at the feet of Edward's social friends, "whose standards and ways of life are alien to all the best interests of his people."

Strong dissent with the venerable Archbishop's statements came today from church circles and was reflected in editorial comment and letters from the public to newspapers.

Josiah Clement Wedgwood, labor member of parliament, said he hoped to open the question to debate in the house of commons Thursday.

The Bishop of Durham, Dr. H. H. Henson, addressing a clerical gathering, said:

"Church Aborted

"I always have been trained to believe that the church of England was an Episcopal church governed by the bishops reigning in their several dioceses.

"Now I find that it is coming to be some kind of a novel body governed by the British Broad-

FIREMEN WILL MEET HERE

Southern California fire chiefs will make Santa Ana their mecca next month.

More than 150 fire chiefs and associate members of the Southern California Fire Chiefs association will hold their twenty-first semi-annual convention in this city on Jan. 16, 1937.

Chief John Luxembourger of Santa Ana, who will be in charge of the convention program, made the announcement today. Luxembourger already has made all preliminary arrangements for the convention, which will have the local city hall as its headquarters.

Election of officers will be one of the business matters to be taken up. Chief Harry Douglas of Huntington Park now is president of the Southern California group.

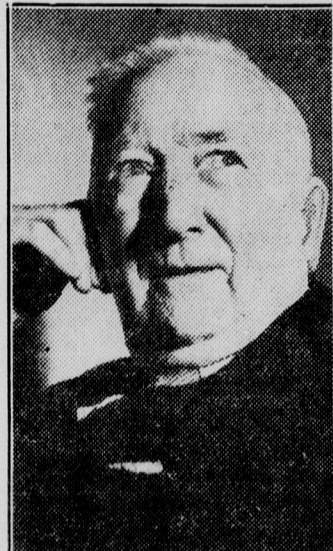

At a meeting in Los Angeles yesterday they discussed a proposal to allow a tolerance of only one stalk under and two stalks over the number marked on crates.

Criminal Libel Charge
For Attack on F. D. R.
Not to Be Dropped

SAN JOSE. (AP)—The criminal libel charge against P. Milton Smith, country newspaper publisher, for an editorial attack on President Roosevelt stands today despite reports it would be dropped.

Smith's preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 13 at a brief arraignment. Assistant District Attorney John Fitzgerald said he had "no intention" of asking dismissal of the case.

United States District Attorney H. H. McPhike declared at San Francisco several days ago the charge, brought by Horace T. Beale of the Patriotic League of nearby Mountain View, should be dropped.

Smith in the post-election editorial in his Mountain View paper referred to the President as a "hypocrite, a mountebank and a false alarm."

Considerable interest is being shown by the city employees in the newly-suggested program. Penn said today that the program has nothing to do with the civil service plan advanced some time ago by the city police and firemen.

Mayor Fred Rowland said last night that there is no new movement regarding civil service for departmental employees, as was indicated in an article appearing in a newspaper outside of Orange county.

Employees Interested

Similar plans are worked by big utility companies and corporations, it was explained, and by cities whose charters gave them the right to have a retirement plan.

PROPOSAL IS PUT BEFORE COUNCIL

Scheme Timely If And
When Salary Boost
Is Provided

Santa Ana city employees today had under consideration a new plan for retirement with a regular monthly income.

At an informal session of the city council late yesterday afternoon, Councilman William Penn broached the matter of the retirement plan for the 160 employees of the city.

City employees here, Penn pointed out, have no retirement plan and governmental employees are not eligible for the federal social security plan.

"If and when an increase in salaries is provided for city employees," Penn said, "that would be the most opportune time for the city employees to work out a retirement plan of their own."

Must Organize

Penn pointed out that the city of Santa Ana has no authority to provide such a plan, but the employees themselves must organize an association to accomplish their ends.

An appropriate time to launch the movement would be when and if the city employees are granted a salary increase, Penn said.

The retirement plan would embrace the idea of city employees setting aside a part of their earnings so they could retire on stipulated incomes, depending, of course, on the amount of their salaries they had contributed.

Proclaim Martial Law; Japan Hurls Charge at Russia

(By the Associated Press)

NANKING.—A radio message from the rebel fastnesses of Shensi province told China today its generalissimo and chief of state, Chiang Kai-Shek, had been slain by a mutinous warlord. The hot-headed leader of revolt, "Young Marshal" Chang Hsueh-Liang, announced with cold blooded drama he had executed Generalissimo Chiang and a number of his loyal generals. Martial law was proclaimed immediately through all of the Chinese republic. Demonstrations were forbidden. Political gatherings were banned.

"The grave situation arising from multiple assassinations in the bleak and rock strewn northern interior area was cited as the reason for the drastic action. Members of the national executive Yuan earlier had met amid republic-wide pledges of military and moral support, without knowing the fate of Chiang, and stood steadfast and unanimous against compromise with the revolt. Thousands upon thousands of central government troops marched relentlessly closer to Sianfu.

Japan May Join

Competent Chinese observers saw a swing in the crisis to the side of the government and there were predictions that Nanking would emerge from its difficulties, as strong if not stronger than ever.

Japan's foreign minister, Hachiro Arita, told his cabinet he believed China's powerful overlord was slain at the hands of "Young Marshal" Chang Hsueh-Liang in bleak Shensi province between sundown last Friday and sunup Sunday.

Fears grew that Japan might take advantage in the crisis. The "young marshal," allied with Communist armies, wants war with Japan, return of the Manchoukuo he once ruled as Manchurian and recognition of Communism as "ransom" for his dictator.

Sianfu Burning

Reports said Sianfu was in flames.

Chiang was seized at Sianfu last Friday in a sudden revolution engineered by "Young Marshal" Chang, who was supposed to have been fighting the Communists with whom he has banded.

MAY ASK WATER
VOTE TUESDAY

Special advice of bond attorneys on the jurisdiction of the Orange county flood control district to carry on the proposed $13,000,000 Prado dam project was sought today by the board of supervisors. The board indicated a water bond election ordinance may be voted on next Tuesday.

B. Z. McKinney, special counsel retained by the board for flood control, said the fact that construction of the dam is to be financed and controlled by the federal government and that the county must maintain it according to regulations of the war department made the legal question different from that in previous bond issues.

Windsor Falls
Under Nazi Ban

BERLIN. (AP)—Pictures of neither the Duke of Windsor nor Mrs. Wallis Simpson may appear in German newspapers, an official regulation instructed editors today.

The ban on publication of the American woman's photograph, in effect since before King Edward's abdication, was ordered extended to include the prince.

Editors were told also not to print stories concerning the duke's stay in Austria.

Gas Lights Flare
At Courthouse

Those antiquated old gas and electric chandeliers in the Orange county courthouse may smack of the turn of the century and seem anything but modern—but there's life in the old things yet.

Yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock the lights went out. A transformer got overheated, or a fuse blew out, or something. Anyway, the electricity was off for a half hour.

Janitors immediately lighted the gas jets, and courthouse habitués groped their way about the halls in flickering yellow light.

For Women Only!

Where is the housewife who wouldn't like an excuse for taking a recess each morning from burdensome chores such as making beds, cleaning house and cooking? The Journal has come to her rescue. The excuse is a daily radio chat at 10:45 a. m. presented over KVOE direct from the editorial rooms of The Journal by Betty Guild. She'll tell you what's happening in Santa Ana's "400;" she'll give you new recipes to try out on your families; she'll comment on happenings in the world of women in which you'll be interested. Just turn your dials each morning at 10:45 to KVOE and give yourselves an enjoyable 15 minutes.

CRAEMER AND ROSPAW ARE HONORED

Justus Craemer, publisher of the Orange Daily News, and Frank Rospaw, publisher of the Placentia Courier, were honored by other Orange county publishers in the Green Cat cafe here last night, with the affair marking achievements of the pair during the past year.

Craemer, California Republican central committee leader, discussed present political trends and dangers of mass voting, as in the recent general election. He pointed out that much of the Roosevelt majority came from voters who had never before visited the polls.

"When the present administration stops playing Santa Claus," Craemer said, "this new element is going to attempt to take things in their own hands."

Rospaw, who is completing a term as president of the California Newspaper Publishers association, pointed out that the attitude of editors has changed toward radio, and that newspaper editors are taking over radio stations.

Rospaw also explained duties of president of the newspaper publishers' group and told of his speech-making tours through the state.

Ed Ainsworth, state editor of the Los Angeles Times, was a featured speaker, pointing to prospects for a much better year for publishers in 1937 if owners of newspapers become more liberal in their view toward acceptance of advertising. Magazines, he added, handle many accounts frowned upon by newspaper publishers.

Humor by Skirvin
Assemblyman Ford Chatters, publisher from Lindsay, spoke briefly. John B. Long, secretary-manager of the state publishers organization, told of proposed legislation affecting newspapers and urged concerted action by publishers.

C. F. Skirvin, Journal writer, read a humorous column which affected nearly every publisher attending. Others present, some of whom spoke briefly, were Ed Bemis, secretary of the Colorado Press association; Mr. and Mrs. Verner Beck, San Juan Capistrano; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. McBride, La Habra; Mason Yould, Santa Ana Register; Roch Bradshaw, "Brick" Gaines and Ed F. Elstrom, Santa Ana Journal; A. C. Peterson, Laguna Beach; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Farquhar, Huntington Beach; W. Kee Maxwell, B. K. Maxwell, W. N. Long and Percy Maynard, Fullerton; W. O. Hart, Orange; Mrs. Justus Craemer, Mrs. Frank Rospaw, and Mr. and Mrs. Lotus Loudon, Anaheim.

Loudon acted as master of ceremonies for the affair. The visitors were entertained by the Golden State Saxophone quintet.

casting corporation and two archbishops. (The reference was to the two ranking archbishops, Canterbury and York.)

"I do not like it,"
Letters to newspapers criticized the Canterbury radio sermon. One writer said, "this words, uttered at this moment, suggest the hitting of a man when he is down."

Blamed Friends
Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express commented editorially: "After the Archbishop of Canterbury comes Archdeacon Lambie of Australia, bravely firing the artillery of the church against a position already evacuated."

(Archdeacon Lambie in a speech at Melbourne had said Edward appeared to lack 'appreciation of the reality of God and responsibility to Him'.)

"They kept their thunder silent while the lines still were mangled," continued the Express. "Now the Archbishop launches an attack against Edward's friends. The archdeacon blames the 'exotic entourage' of the former king."

Thing Finished
"The clergy should specify the persons they accuse—or else show some of the restraint they preach about."

The News Chronicle editorially mentioned that its "post bag contains many letters protesting that the Primates' (Canterbury's) broadcast criticism of King Edward on Sunday night was unfriendly and even unchristian." The editorial concludes:

"Edward VIII has gone. To pursue the campaign can bring no benefit to the cause of the monarchy or Christian charity. The thing is finished."

Comment in the house of commons led to the belief not only the archbishop's remarks, but Edward's radio farewell to the nation Friday, would be raised in parliament.

Death Takes Mrs. Frances A. White

Mrs. Frances A. White, formerly of Orange, died late yesterday at the Long Beach Community hospital.

She is survived by a brother, Earl Wood of Orange; a sister, Mrs. Wilbur J. Woods of Orange; a son, Cedric White of Long Beach; a daughter, Miss Phyllis White of San Gabriel; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wood of Long Beach; and two grandchildren, Cedric and Dorine White of Long Beach.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the Presbyterian church of Orange with Dr. Robert Burns McAnulty officiating. Gillogly's funeral home is in charge, and burial will be in Fairhaven.

EXPANSION OF LOCAL BOWL PLANNED

Improvements and expansion of the Santa Ana Municipal bowl at a cost of about $6000 were being considered seriously by the city council today.

While it is likely that the bulk of the work planned will not be done until after the next fiscal year, plans are so far advanced that they are down on paper.

Councilman Ernest H. Layton presented the program to members of the city council at an informal session late yesterday afternoon. He suggested that work on the program, in a preliminary manner, could be started in the near future, the more expensive part to be done with money from next year's budget.

The plan embraces addition of from 400 to 500 more seats to be placed around a second ball diamond planned for the northeast corner of the bowl. This would permit playing of two ball games at the same time, Layton said, although he did not advocate more than one game at a time when Nightball league games are being played.

Filling in of places now without turf, grassing the entire north end now used for parking, fencing the shrubbery around the north section, opening of two more tunnels on the west side of the bowl, building of more restrooms and improvements of those now in use and other improvements are planned.

Children's Playground
The entire north end now used for parking would be transformed into an attractive summer playground for children under the new plan. This grassy space at the end would be 125 by 350 feet. It also is planned to grass the west section from the north end down to the bleachers. A low fence along the north bank is planned.

Members of the council showed keen interest in the proposal, stating that the bowl is one of Santa Ana's biggest assets.

Mayor Fred Rowland named Councilman William Penn and A. H. Allen, chairman of the forestry board, as members of a committee to further the program.

Typing Champ to Perform Here
Chester Soucek, 25-year-old holder of the world's amateur typewriting championship record, will give a demonstration tomorrow at Santa Ana Junior college at 11 a. m.

He competed in the International Typewriting contest at Toronto, Canada, Sept. 2 of this year. Soucek will perform before a business practice class, according to Instructor George B. Holmes. The demonstration will be held in College hall and the public is invited, he said.

Condemn Lands For Highway
Superior Judge G. K. Scovel today granted the state department of public works immediate access to lands of Francis Marion Dowling at Placentia for extension of Orangehorpe avenue.

In filing condemnation proceedings, the state posted $855 in payment for estimated damages for use of 8-10 acre of land to be used for right of way.

the season's total to 2.53 inches as compared to 1.24 inches at this time last year. Orange reported the heaviest fall, with 1.63 inches and Brea the smallest, with .98.

Storm warnings were raised at Newport-Balboa last night, according to Fire Chief Frank Crocker, who also acts as government meteorologist. The wind, attaining a height of only 18 to 20 miles per hour, did no damage in the county's harbor, it was reported.

Officials from the county farm advisor's office said today that nearly all branches of agriculture would profit from the showers.

Citrus growers, many of whom recently planted cover crops, will be especially benefitted by the rain, it was said.

army advanced on mountain shelled Shensi. There were some reports of fighting; others that they had met but little resistance.

The Nanking troops were in crack German-trained divisions. "Young Marshal" Chang, Chinese officials estimated, had 70,000 men at his own disposal. The government's potential strength is much greater.

There were advices that the Nanking government had informed Mme. Chang Po-cheng, wife of the generalissimo, right hand man, that neither Chiang nor his aide could be alive.

Jap-Russo Conflict
Tokyo observers, at the same time, said Japan could not remain on the sidelines if it should develop that the Soviet union had a directing hand in the coup.

Russo-Jap relations grew more strained. The Soviet government refused again to sign the Siberian fishing agreement, which is economically vital to Japan. Russians charged that "Japanese imperialism" was behind China's crisis.

There were still rumors that Generalissimo Chiang had turned the tables on his captor. One story, that he was free, set off a premature celebration in Canton. Another report, at Peiping, said rebels and national troops were fighting at Lanchow, Kansu provincial capital.

A business session in the afternoon and a pot-luck supper at 6 o'clock preceded the program, which opened with discussion of literature and health led by the Grange lecturer, Mrs. Roy Corry.

Mrs. Edna Hewett Smith of the Orange County Tuberculosis association presented the health film, "Behind the Shadow," and the latter part of the evening was devoted to Christmas music arranged by Julian D. Matthews.

GIRL SLAYER HANGS SELF IN PRISON

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Miss Hope Morgan, 25, who confessed that a homicidal impulse caused her to kill a woman friend just a week ago, hanged herself today with a noose fashioned from her pajamas in the county jail at Mason.

She executed the self-imposed death sentence while awaiting the report of a sanity commission that examined her last week after the fatal shooting of Miss Elizabeth Giltner, 25, daughter of a Michigan State College dean.

A woman inmate of the jail noted her absence from her cell about 3:30 a. m. She summoned Mrs. Allan McDonald, wife of the sheriff and matron of the jail.

Mrs. McDonald found the body suspended from a shower-bath fixture in a room adjoining the women's quarters. Coroner Ray Gorsline said she probably had been dead an hour.

Only yesterday, Sheriff McDonald had taken a large nail file from Miss Morgan for fear she would attempt to take her life.

Miss Giltner, daughter of Ward Giltner, dean of the veterinary college at Michigan State College, was shot to death last Tuesday night at her home.

ROOSEVELT IS HOME AGAIN

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—President Roosevelt landed from the cruiser Indianapolis here today, completing an eventful 28-day round-trip cruise to the Buenos Aires peace conference.

The President, dressed in a dark business suit and topcoat in contrast to the summer clothes he wore almost to the last day of his South American good will tour, stepped ashore at 8:30 a. m., followed by his son James and other members of his party. A cold rain was falling.

Met by two secretaries and Mrs. James Roosevelt, jr., the President greeted them heartily. Then he boarded a few blocks to the railway depot and left at 9 o'clock for a 12-hour ride to Washington.

TRASH MUST BE PURIFIED Won't Pick Up Mixed Refuse

If you find your trash still out in the alley after the city trash man has passed by, don't be surprised.

What's more, if you find a neat tag fastened to said trash, it will tell exactly why the trash man passed you by.

This is all because of the new and more stringent rules adopted yesterday by the city council regarding collection of trash.

Here are the rules:
1. For sanitation reasons, no garbage shall be left mixed up with the trash.

2. Trash must be placed in containers.

3. Trash in containers should not weigh more than 75 pounds. (Council thinks that's enough for trash men to lift, pointing out that one container sometimes contains as much as 500 pounds.)

4. Containers should not be filled above the top.

5. Branches should be cut up into small pieces and placed in a compact bundle.

6. To prevent fires, no live coals or hot ashes should be in the trash.

7. Vacuum cleaner dust or sweepings must be wrapped up.

8. Special arrangements for picking up heavy materials can be made by calling up the street department.

Persons who violate these rules very often will find tags left on their trash, with the reason for not picking up the trash marked with a neat check.

These new trash regulations will be sent to each resident with his water bill.

Jerome to Aid Relief Program

Although he will retire from office early in January, Supervisor William C. Jerome, Santa Ana, is expected to play a large part in re-framing state relief and welfare laws when the legislature meets in January.

A conference in Los Angeles Friday at which the new legislation was considered, will lead to a meeting of the state supervisors association and the California League of Municipalities on the question, Jerome said.

Jerome, as chairman of the coordinating committee between the supervisors and cities, will remain active in the work until after the proposals are submitted to the state legislature.

Adkinson Must Apply for Trip
If Ray Adkinson, county superintendent of schools, wants to attend the national convention of school superintendents in New Orleans Feb. 22-26, he'll have to make his own request to the board of supervisors.

The board today filed away without action a letter from Frank A. Henderson, Santa Ana city superintendent of schools, asking a state director in the National Education association, asking that Adkinson be sent.

ASKS $10,100 FOR ARREST

Charging he was falsely arrested and jailed on a charge of attempted robbery, Howard Clayton of Anaheim today started suit in superior court against Felix Graski, asking $10,100 damages.

Clayton said that on Sept. 23 Graski was the victim of an attempted robbery by a man with a gun, and that nearly a month later, Nov. 21, Graski signed a complaint charging Clayton with the crime.

Clayton alleged he was held in the Orange county jail for two days before he was able to post $1000 bail. At a preliminary hearing Dec. 2 the charges were dismissed.

Raymond Fink of Laguna Is Suicide
Despondent and tired of living, Raymond Fink, 50, closed the garage doors at his Laguna Beach home yesterday afternoon and started the motor of his car, the coroner's office reported today.

He was dead when his daughter, arriving home from school, discovered the gas-filled garage. A note in the car told his wife, Mrs. Pauline Fink, that he intended to end his life. Funeral arrangements were being made today at the Laguna Beach funeral home. No inquest will be held.

SEEK TO END SEWER PIPE BATTLE

S. A. Urges Compromise Of Argument Over Outfall Repair

Despite the fact that city councilmen of Santa Ana are convinced they are in the right in the battle of vitrified clay versus concrete pipe for the outfall sewer repair job, the city of Santa Ana will make the next move to settle differences with other cities in the outfall sewer district. At an informal session of the city council last night, Mayor Fred C. Rowland was authorized by the council to proceed with plans for contacting other cities in the outfall district in an attempt to break the deadlock over the type of pipe desired, and to explain Santa Ana's position.

Councilmen, including Joseph P. Smith, Santa Ana's representative on the outfall sewer board, took care to explain that misstatements have been made regarding the type of pipe which the outfall sewer now is composed.

Clay Used Now
It was pointed out that the sewer line is made of segments of vitrified clay block similar to that advocated by cities other than Santa Ana. The impression has been given, the council said, that the sewer line is of concrete, whereas it contends this is not the case. The trouble with the present line, it was stated, is in the plaster cement with which the clay segments are joined.

Santa Ana proposes to rebuild the line with reinforced spun concrete of great strength, members of the council stated, of the same type used successfully in Los Angeles and the San Francisco area. This city proposes a 42-inch pipe line of such material, which would be of sufficient capacity to serve until at least 1960, when the capacity could be practically doubled by installing a pump at the upper end of the system.

Concrete Arguments
The line Santa Ana proposes would be made of 42-inch concrete pipe, the same size as the pipe now used. The council says vitrified pipe of the same size would cost $57,000 more with no assurance that the vitrified pipe would stand up. It is claimed that a good 42-inch vitrified pipe cannot be made, and that a vitrified pipe more than 36 inches in size has never been successful.

It was indicated that Santa Ana will remain firm in its stand for reinforced concrete pipe, which, it is claimed, would last indefinitely if the line is kept full of water, as is planned.

Other cities and sanitary districts owning 55 per cent of the county joint outfall sewer last week prepared to start a "friendly" suit against Santa Ana for its refusal to agree to use vitrified pipe. They asked Engineer Paul Bailey to estimate the cost of building a line separate from the present one for the use of other cities, and for the cost of a reclamation plant to make sewage water usable for irrigation.

POLICE REPORTS
The following information was taken from today's report on file at the Santa Ana police department:

Pacific Electric railway employees were called to remove a rope which hung dangerously over a trolley wire at Fourth and Main streets yesterday, as pedestrians craned their necks to watch proceedings.

E. L. McCarter of Tustin found his car stalled here at 1:03 a. m. today. He called the police station and a patrol car came around to give McCarter's car a push, after which it started.

Charles Colburn, Los Angeles, promised not to sell any more pencils on Santa Ana streets after he was warned by officers yesterday.

Cars driven by B. Cervantes, Westminster, and Fortunato Castro, 904 East Pine street, collided at Fourth and Bush streets yesterday afternoon.

Harry W. Dixon, 908½ West Fifth street, charged with assault and battery against Grace M. Dixon, pleaded guilty in city court and was given a 30-day suspended jail sentence by Judge John G. Mitchell.

City court traffic fines: Speeding—Robert A. Jakobson, $5; Maria Christina Welles, $5; Bert Rosen, $5; Boulevard stop—P. C. E. Hatch, $2; Mrs. Paul J. Dale, $2; Emma J. Goodwin, $2; Joe Morens, $2; S. H. Finley, $2; Parking—P. S. Layton, $1; A. J. Lasby, $1.

COURT BRIEFS
Mrs. Sadie Roehm of Tustin has filed in superior court the will of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Getchel, who died in Santa Ana Nov. 15, leaving an estate of $2,400.

George R. Boyer of Orange has petitioned the superior court to probate the will of Catherine Rudolph, who died Dec. 6 leaving an estate of $5000 in real estate, stocks and cash. The will named a sister, Flora Hitchcock, 73, of Sandusky, O., as sole heir.

Richard A. Fenelon of Oakland is petitioning the superior court here to appoint him administrator of the estate of his brother, M. J. Fenelon, who died in Orange county on Nov. 13, leaving an estate of $10,000. Five brothers and sisters, six nieces and nephews none of whom live in Orange county, are named as heirs.

Townsend News, Views

By WALTER R. ROBB

(This is a non-political, non-partisan column, dealing with Townsend news and views, and written by a prominent Townsend leader. Any opinions which are expressed herein are not necessarily those of The Journal.)

Lester H. Young of Newport Beach, 90 year old G. A. R. veteran, and enthusiastic proponent of the Townsend plan, passed away last week. His remains are resting in Fairhaven cemetery.

His funeral service was attended by more than 100 Spanish - American, U. S. World war and Canadian World war veterans. The service was handled by the Dixon chapel of Balboa.

Guards of honor, pallbearers and other contingents common to a military burial were represented by members from the above group.

Mr. Young had lived an eventful and useful life. He resided at 128 East Central street and passed away at the Veterans' hospital in Sawtelle, Dec. 7. His relatives, including a wife and a son, preceded him in death. As a Civil war soldier fighting with the Union forces he was privileged to come in contact with President Abraham Lincoln several times.

Of late years it was the custom to have him recite Lincoln's Gettysburg address each year at the Newport Memorial day services.

Mr. Young was one of the early members of the Townsend National legion and was the proud wearer of the enameled Townsend legion button. On the twentieth of July, 1935 he wrote the writer of this column a letter, in which he made the following statement which lies before me as I write.

"Please accept my thanks for the interest you have manifested in my effort to become a member of the National legion. I am a Civil war veteran, and to me it seems that we are engaged in the greatest struggle in the interest of humanity that has presented itself to the American people since the Civil war. I am past 88 years old and have no income except my pension and am very thankful for the privilege of adding my mite to the fund that will help to keep men in the field of hope."

The writer records in his column the passing of this G. A. R. veteran, who was fired from early manhood to the close of life with a desire to protect and insure the welfare of his fellow Americans.

He had no expectancy of being personally benefitted. His contributions and his influence were expended with the thought of others. This Civil war soldier's spirit of brotherly interest is representative, in the opinion of the writer, of the grand old people who are fighting so strenuously in the army of the Townsends.

Already too old and infirm to expect to be here long, still they give of their means and their strength to the Townsend movement. This they do because they believe by so doing they will be contributing to the welfare of those who shall follow them.

The writer believes that it is this kind of nobleness of spirit which from the beginning has actuated Dr. Francis E. Townsend in his effort expended for the Townsend cause. It, too, is getting along the way of life toward the exit over which is written the word "death." Beyond that gateway there is no turning back to gather of the fruits of the seeds that were planted. Others must be privileged to enjoy the results of life's toil and sacrifice. But such does not bring sorrow, but instead life's greatest happiness. In the memories of men there are no regrets because of noble efforts begun and done. Many an elderly Townsendsite finds a new sweetness in his heart and life because the Townsend movement has given opportunity to express in a wider way his interest and love for his fellow men, than was true before. Lester H. Young expressed something of this satisfaction in his letter to the writer. Dr. Townsend will express a measure of it in his address to the Orange county people in the Santa Ana High school auditorium next Saturday night.

Townsend Clubs
All persons interested in the Townsend movement are cordially invited to attend any of the club sessions, particularly those in the clubs in their own neighborhoods. Members are also urged to turn out regularly.

Club No. 9 meets tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. in the Edison school.

LOS ANGELES FIGHT 'CERTAIN' FOR JOE LOUIS

C-o-l-u-m-n L-e-f-t

By PAUL WRIGHT

If Santa Ana High school transfers from the Coast to the Citrus Belt league, the Saints will not be forced to establish new rivalries. The rivalries are already there.

Back in the 1900's the "big game" was with San Bernardino... or nearby Riverside.

Santa Ana interest could be stimulated just as rapidly in a new prep circuit as it was in the Eastern J. C. conference when the Dons made the "big shift" in 1932.

Most everyone thought the junior college was committing an unpardonable crime by pulling away from Los Angeles, Glendale, Long Beach, Pasadena and Compton of the Western conference, but the move proved successful the very first season.

It is learned semi-officially that the high school will gladly bolt the Coast league with an invitation to join the Citrus Belt. But the Saints, according to their coach, Bill Foote, do not plan to make the first move. They will not petition the C. I. F. for withdrawal from the Coast league which he admits is too strong for them. They will, however, carefully and gladly consider new playmates if an opportunity arises.

An invitation to join a new league probably will be grabbed as quickly as a drowning man does a straw.

University of Washington's acceptance of that Rose Bowl bid cost the Huskies a trip to Hawaii.

Coach Jim Phelan had scheduled games with the Honolulu Athletic club for Christmas day and the University of Hawaii for New Year's, with a proviso he could cancel the dates if his club won the Pasadena assignment.

"It was just our luck to win the title the wrong year," moaned the seniors. "Now we miss the boat ride to Honolulu. And just when we had our hearts set on seeing some of those hula-hula babies."

Gordon Mallett, ex-Saint twirler who has been playing Sunday baseball the past two years, has been shelved with a badly-burned left foot, scalded when a pall of hot water over-turned. He is up and about now, but there is still some danger of blood-poisoning.

Santa Ana Jaycee recently became steamed up over a "raid" of athletes in Orange county by Clarence Shaeffer, Coach Jesse Mortensen's backfield aide at Riverside.

The Riverside man is said to have contacted such hot prep numbers as Larry Timken, Gil Nehrig and Grover (Lil' Abner) Miller of Orange, Rex Whittemore of Anaheim and Del Jones of Valencia.

"Before getting in a stew over the possibility of Orange county prep stars enrolling at R. J. C. next fall," writes the Riverside Enterprise sports ed, "it might be well for Santa Ana to keep in mind that all Orange county except Santa Ana and Fullerton is 'open territory.'" Most of Corona's prep talent goes to Citrus and Chaffey instead of Riverside. Pomona receives many Chaffey eligibles and Chaffey gets most of the stars from Covina, which is a brassie and a niblick from Citrus."

School Board May Build 10 Tennis Courts

HIGH SCHOOL VOTED NEW EQUIPMENT

Dr. Baker's Motion To Continue With Plans Receives Approval

Christmas came early today for Santa Ana's tennis-playing public.

Prospects for the construction of 10 new courts, to be located on Santa Ana High school's new campus, loomed following a board of education meeting last night in which it was voted, on Dr. Margaret Baker's motion, to proceed with plans.

Specifications will be drawn in the near future, and construction should be completed within a few months, it was indicated by George Newcom, business manager of the board. School officials have budgeted $17,500 for the courts, with 45 per cent of the cost to be furnished by PWA. It is estimated each court will cost approximately $1500.

Construction of six or seven courts is certain, and more will be planned if funds are available, Newcom said.

The board of education now has three courts at Frances Willard Junior High school, three at Julia Lathrop Junior High school and two at the junior college, in addition to six time-worn courts at the high school. The six at the high school will be replaced by the new ones.

KUDO'S BODY SLAM PINS COLEMAN

By BOB GUILD

They made Kiman Kudo of Japan the winner last night in the rubber-match between the mighty Nipponese and agile Bob Coleman of Los Angeles, at the O. C. A. C.

Kudo slapped on a body slam in a matter of several seconds to take the third fall, after winning the first and losing the second. This makes nobody champion, because these two lads fight all over the state, and seem to take their regular turn at winning.

Feature of the evening was the behemoths—and the wrecked ring. The two go together naturally, because if it hadn't been for the one, the other wouldn't have happened. Things began to weaken when Giant Tiny Roebuck tangled with Jake Patterson, losing on a foul (kick in the tummy to you).

They weakened even more when 285-pound Jules Strongbow subdued Bull Harper. Harper missed a flying tackle to devastate a row of ringside seats and nearly tear himself to pieces.

But things collapsed entirely when mighty Thor Johnson squashed Ignacio Martinez, amid a welter of collapsed ropes and ring posts. The entire corner of Promoter Sampson's padded square was torn loose.

Ignacio, who has been building up to something with astounding regularity around these parts, arrived last night, under Thor's 380 pounds. He was literally squashed, and it took six strong men to lug his body out of the ring.

They trussed the ring up with a length of rope, and ushered in Kudo and Coleman, too tiny to tear things up any worse.

There also was a 10-minute battle between Billy Grubbs and Iron Mike Works, which ended in a draw, outside the ring.

She's Outstanding 1936 Athlete

Miss Stephens Rated Over Alice Marble, Pamela Barton

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of stories analyzing results of the sixth annual Associated Press sports poll. It covers replies of the country's sports editors to the query: Who was the year's outstanding performer, among women, in any sport?)

By ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK. (AP)—For her track and field achievements, including national championship as well as Olympic conquests, Helen Stephens, 20-year-old Fulton, (Mo.) girl, has been selected as the outstanding feminine athlete of 1936.

Results in the sixth annual Associated Press sport poll, tabulated today, revealed Miss Stephens the choice of the nation's experts over two main rivals, Alice Marble of San Francisco, new American tennis queen, and Pamela Barton, English girl who captured both American and British golf championships.

Polls 97 Points

The long striding Missouri girl, although picked No. 1 by only 20 among 62 observers, tallied a winning of 97 points. Miss Marble and Miss Barton, each with 12 first places, totaled 78 and 56 points, respectively.

Miss Stephens, like Babe Didrickson in 1932, topped the poll mainly because of her record smashing Olympic victories. Helen proved herself the world's fastest feminine runner by capturing the 100-meter dash at Berlin, dethroning Poland's Stella Walsh and lowering the record to 11.4 seconds. She also anchored the American women's 400-meter relay team which won the Olympic final after the Germans, while leading, dropped the baton.

Before going abroad for the first time Miss Stephens captured three National A. A. U. championships, the 100-meter dash, discus throw and shotput. She holds numerous indoor as well as outdoor records.

TUSTIN'S FIVE THREATENS

Ralph (Bill) Cole's Tilters of Tustin High school will cut a fancy figure in the eighth annual Southern Counties Basketball Invitational at Huntington Beach Thursday, Friday and Saturday, if their showing in the La Verne tournament is a criterion.

Tustin mowed down San Juan Capistrano, 33 to 21, to win the minor division crown at La Verne Saturday night, with the Francis brothers—Sam and Paul—scoring 20 points between them. Sam Francis scored 54 points in four games.

The Cole preps open another minor division title bid at Huntington Beach Friday at 6 p. m. when they go up against Bonita. Santa Ana's Saints play their first major division game the same afternoon—against Whittier of the Foothill league at 4:30.

Thursday's opening schedule: Minor division—Downey vs. Valencia, 2:30 p. m.; San Juan Capistrano vs. Brea-Olinda, 6:30 p. m.; Intermediate division—Corona vs. Anaheim, 3:30 p. m.; Huntington Beach vs. Colton, 7:30 p. m.; Major division—Fullerton vs. Long Beach Woodrow Wilson, 4:30 p. m.; Long Beach Poly vs. Pasadena Murietta, 8:30 p. m.

Although barred from Olympic competition, for violating training rules during the trip to Germany, Eleanor Holm Jarrett Polled tryout competition, has not been beaten in her specialty, back-

15 points. It was pointed out Mrs. Jarrett, victor in national championship as well as Olympic tryout competition, has not been beaten in her specialty, backstroke swimming, in seven years and still holds most records.

Sonja Henie Eighth

Sonja Henie, the Norwegian girl who retired from amateur competition after retaining world figure skating honors at the winter Olympics, received four votes for first place.

Tabulation of the poll follows, with votes tallied on a 3-2-1 basis:

1. Helen Stephens, U. S. and Olympic track and field winner, 97.
2. Alice Marble, U. S. tennis champion, 78.
3. Pamela Barton, British and U. S. golf champion, 56.
4. Helen Jacobs, Wimbledon tennis champion, 30.
5. Patty Berg, youthful American golf star, 22.
6. Eleanor Holm Jarrett, backstroke swimming champion, 15.
7. Marjorie Gestring, Olympic springboard diving champion, 13.
8. Sonja Henie, world figure skating champion, 12.
9. Helen Wills Moody, former tennis queen, 7.
10. Lenore Kight Wingard, U. S. swimming champion, 6.

Scattered votes: Dorothy Poynton Hill, Olympic platform diving champion, 6; Rita Mastenbroek of Holland, Olympic swimming champion, 4; two points each for Katherine Rawls, national swimming champion; Mary Hoerger, former springboard diving champion, and Kay Stammers, British tennis star; one point each for Stella Walsh, runner-up for Olympic sprint title; and Glenna Collett Vare, former golf champion.

CARDINALS BUY SAC TWIRLER

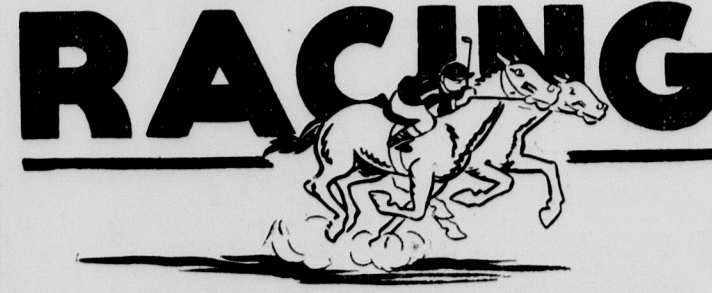

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals purchased Nathan Andrews, 23-year-old right-handed pitcher, from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast league today for Pitcher Henry (Cotton) Pippin and an unannounced amount of cash. Sacramento is a member of the Cards' farm system.

The Advent Christians, one of the best quintets in the Community Church league, took their spite out on the United Brethren at the Y. M. C. A. last night to the tune of 48 to 13.

LeRoy (Chub) Sears, clever guard, hit the loop for 13 points for the winners. Other high-scorers were Horace Sears, 6; Stone, 10, and George Padias and Parnell, 6 each.

The South Methodist defeated the Southern Counties Gas company five, 19 to 15, in an exhibition. The Christian Missionary Alliance failed to report.

Beatty's Dons Overpower Compton, 26-17

Flashing a dazzling attack in the second half—when it counts—Santa Ana Junior college's basketball troupe broke into the win column at the expense of Compton's Tartars, 26 to 17, on the Compton floor last night. Coach Blanchard Beatty's reserves lost a 21-19 decision to the Compton seconds in the preliminary.

Beatty was well pleased with the way his charges handled the ball, and his new combination of Erwin Youel and Ken Nissley at forward, Harry Stanley at center, Bob Browning and Clarence (Tay) Riggs at guard really clicked.

Nissley and Browning, between them, poured 19 points through the Tartar ring. Sixteen of the counters came in the second half in which the Dons outscored Compton, 18 to 7.

The action was instituted by Thomas W. Simmons, J. L. Madison and Roy F. Wilcox, all of Los Angeles, who charged Chairman Carleton F. Burke, Los Angeles, with being so identified with the Santa Anita track that he was unable to deal fairly with other applicants for race permits.

William J. Roth, San Francisco, was accused with Burke of failing to draft proper rules for the encouragement of agriculture and the breeding of horses. Legal betting on horse races was permitted in an act which specified this encouragement.

Roth was also charged with allowing himself to be "dominated" by Burke.

The action is an outgrowth of the commission's revocation of a race permit granted the Hollywood Turf club when that organization was unable to build a track on a designated site because of community opposition. The club said it had already spent $300,000 for a plant at a different location when the permit was revoked.

ROSENBLUM MENTIONED AS RIVAL

Bomber Slated For Bout Here On Eve Of Santa Anita's Big Handicap

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
CLEVELAND. (AP)—Joe Louis, 10 years ago an Alabama cotton picker at 10 cents a day, added another $20,000 to his bankroll today to bring his 1936 ring earnings up to $300,000 for six fights. Twenty thousand dollars for landing just one devastating left hook—that was the sum the frozen-faced Detroit negro received for accomplishing the quickest knockout of his sensational career—paralyzing Cleveland's Eddie Simms in exactly 18 seconds of a bout scheduled to go 10 rounds.

The dramatic finish stunned the 11,000 persons in Cleveland's public hall last night. The spectators who paid $50,000 to witness the charity fight sponsored by the Cleveland News hardly had settled back in their seats to enjoy the battle before it was over.

Simms, bearing a broken, twisted nose as scars of other battles, came charging out of his corner crouched low, his left hand extended.

He landed half a dozen blows, first driving lefts to Louis' body and then shifting to the face. Louis danced away, with the 195-pound Cleveland heavyweight pressing after him. Simms suddenly lashed out with another left to the face and a right to the head.

Louis shook his head for an instant, and then, like a panther, sprang forward, trying to rise. He drew his legs under him, and three times tried to clutch the ropes of the ring to bring himself to his feet. Finally he caught the middle rope and pulled himself up at the count of eight, 26 seconds after the bout started. He was swaying like a drunken man. His eyes were glassy.

Knocked Out First Time
Referee Arthur Donovan waved the Brown Bomber to his corner as Louis was moving in for the kill. It was the first time Simms had been knocked out in 52 battles over a period of five years.

It will go down in the record book as a technical knockout, for Donovan stopped it because he believed he was justified.

Louis is going to fight as often as possible. Jim Mullen, matchmaker for the Chicago stadium, has engaged Louis for a bout either on Feb. 4 or 11.

A match with Maxie Rosenbloom, former world's light heavyweight champion, is in prospect for Los Angeles, the eve of the Santa Anita handicap, late in February. Mike Jacobs, controlling Louis' fight decisions, said the Brown Bomber undoubtedly would fight in Los Angeles, with ringside seats selling at $100 to attract movie stars.

Thus Louis, in line to meet the winner of the world's heavyweight title fight between Jimmy Braddock, titleholder, and Max Schmeling, next June, may earn more in 1937 than he did in 1936.

SCOT OUTSMARTS HIMSELF Golfer's Wife Is Chuckling

NASSAU, Bahamas. (AP)—Willie MacFarlane, as canny a Scot as ever left Aberdeen, conceded today he had out-smarted himself—and is Mrs. MacFarlane chuckling!

The story of MacFarlane's embarrassment came out after Willie won the Nassau Open golf tournament yesterday. He fired a six under par, 266 for the 72 holes, but Mrs. MacFarlane collected the $800 top prize.

"We agreed before leaving home," explained Willie, "to take turn about on collecting whatever I might win on the winter circuit."

He gave Mrs. MacFarlane the first tourney—the Augusta Open—calculating his best chance for big money would be in the Miami Biltmore.

As it worked out, however, Mrs. MacFarlane collected Willie's $87.50 prize from the Augusta and $800 here, while the New York professional finished just out of the money in the Biltmore.

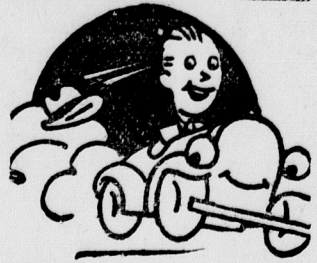

Dividing second and third money totaling $800 were two Chicagoans, Horton Smith and Harry Cooper, who tied with 269s.

Here and There With The Journal's
Rambling County Editor
By T. N. (BRICK) GAINES

BEFORE offering this, I'm going to apologize. Both for myself and for Lynn's Scotsman, in the pride of Newport, I'm afraid he's going to burst into poetry again!

It wasn't so long ago that, masquerading under the pen-name of "Wharf Rat" the Scotsman produced the most horrid example of something or other, which he called a poem. Tck, tck! It was smelly! And now, my suffering public, he has a better outbreak.

His objective, I pointed out last time, is to get a new pier at Newport. He's following my predictions, in that he's started this series of unfortunate literary offerings, knowing the city council can stand it just so long. Then they'll give in and buy him a half-dozen piers, if he'll only stop!

So, without further apologies, I'll present the Scotsman, his introduction and his "poem."

Due to the overwhelming reception of our last poem, "Many People Fish on the Newport Pier," it gives us great pleasure to present an encore number, or should we say a second in a series which will last until we get some action on the matter. At any rate, as John Paul Jones, Paul Revere, Nathaniel Hale, or whoever it was once said: We've just begun to fight. So we're off to the races, and not Santa Anita either.

THOSE PIER FISHERMEN
Service stations sell 'em gasoline. Barbers shave their beard. Grocery men sell 'em stuff to eat. When they fish on the Newport Pier.

If hungry they eat in our restaurants. If sleepy they rent a room. In such ways they help every one of us.

Those fishermen on the Newport Pier. If they catch no fish our markets they visit.

Proof, for their fairy tale. Everybody gets a crack at 'em. Those fishermen on the Pier.

All this is nice and lovely. In fact it's very divine. "The heck, it is," says the fisherman! "You're batty and all out of line."

"Our poles get tangled and broken. We cuss but to no avail." "Lengthen and fix it up for us," says the fishermen on the Pier.

And now, without further argument, I'm going to clip the rest of the column for today. From the long-suffering Editor Verner Beck, San Juan Capistrano, I swipe another Sermon for Chillun. Here she is:

Little Chilluns, really and truly it isn't nice to write with a pencil on the wall, because somebody has to scrub it off, and maybe it might have been the shed and walls and sidewalks. So he grew up to be a salesman boss and had drummers all over the land. My Chilluns, how hard he made them work, and he never got over having writing on the wall. He paid a man to print a pretty sign saying "do a better job than the other man does," and he sent some to all his drummers and nailed them on every wall in his house. He wrote in his office. He wanted to write it on the walls but his nice wife said things to him so he did not. One day the boss was far from home when a Western Union boy gave him a paper that said "the stork dropped in, stop." So the man hopped on a train to see what the stork had, but before he got there the neighbors were here and there to other unfortunate wives and borrowed their new babies and put them in the same bed with the other one. So when the boss salesman dashed in and had a look he nearly died, Chilluns. He wanted to know if any had got away, and happened to look up and there he saw the sign on the wall and it said "do a better job than the other man does." He thought of Papa Dionne and what folks said about him, so he went batty, Chilluns, and ran out of the house yelling six at a time is too much, and in the street a milk wagon ran into a light pole, and the wire fell down and burned up a street car, and his picture got in the paper and it said "what a man," and telegrams came from all of his drummers and all they said was "do a better job than the other man does, stop." And when he was ransacking with the cops the neighbors came and got their babies, and then he went home and looked in the bed and saw only one little baby, and nobody told him different. So he realized what really could have happened and had his head examined and burned up all his signs and told his drummers to throw theirs out of the window, too. And one day

NATION WIDE APPEAL IS PLANNED

Open Campaign to Bring Florida Visitors To Beach Convention

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Just to start things humming, Huntington Beach was licking envelopes today containing literature to be mailed to Florida to tell the Jacksonville folk the first trailer convention ever held on the Pacific Coast has been scheduled for this city early next spring.

Pleased with the task were Bill Ebert, owner of the Sea Breeze trailer camp, and William Gallienne, executive secretary of the Huntington Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Huntington Beach as the all-year home of the rolling homes of the highway was the message they were preparing to broadcast through the mails. "Come and bring your coaster-cottage to California's most comfortable coastline trailer camp city," was their invitation being prepared for presentation to the wanted visitors.

Many plans already have been outlined toward improving accommodations and facilities of the ocean-front camps. Gallienne said, in which, he added, records for visitors exceeded all previous years. Trailer manufacturers, he said, have indicated their desire to have a share in the first house-car convention ever held on the beaches of the Pacific ocean.

The China Star

By JOSEPH LEWIS CHADWICK

Hugh Morley, U. S. Secret Service agent, is aboard the China Star, bound from Shanghai for San Francisco, under orders to guard Bill J. Brandon, an inventor for San Francisco, who is traveling incognito as "John B. Ellis." Morley is attracted to the lovely Sylvia Ames, who has some connection with a mysterious over-investigative Chinese agent, and he is also carrying some valuable information. Morley has not made his identity known to Ellis but, when he gets radioed orders to warn him he is in danger from rapists or jewel thieves, he goes to his stateroom to find him gloating over a heap of pearls.

With these questions annoying him, Morley went in search of the pursuer—a young man named Benson. To him, Morley showed his credentials and spoke at length, in strict confidence.

Benson nodded. "Right. We can't have trouble aboard. I'll talk to Mr. Ellis at once and try to convince him that our safe is the only place for the pearls."

Morley asked, "Do you know anything about Miss Sylvia Ames?"

Benson raised his eyebrows. "No—nothing unusual."

"How about Phil Lon, the amiable Chinese-American?"

The pursuer grimaced. "He's too inquisitive."

Morley nodded. "You'll talk to Ellis, then? Good. Perhaps we'll need a guard. . . . He's a rather important personage, you know."

Morley went to his stateroom and had been there only a few minutes, when someone knocked softly. He opened the door to Phil Lon. "On, hello, Lon. Come in," he invited cheerfully, suddenly deciding to cultivate the Oriental.

"What's on your mind?"

Smiling genially, Lon stepped into the compartment.

"I just thought I'd stop in to tell you that I remember now which jewels Ellis has with him. They are the pearls."

Morley's eyes narrowed. "You blamed fraud. Don't tell me a man selling soya products must possess knowledge of pearls!"

Lon sat down without being invited.

"Mr. Morley," he said evenly. "I also handle sidelines." He took his cigar case from his pocket, and selected a cigar with great care. Then: "But I am not interested in pearls—desirable and valuable as they may be."

Morley flipped his lighter and held the flame to Lon's cigar.

"Let's cut out all this fencing with words. What do you want with me?"

Lon did not look at him. "You, I take it, are interested in jewels?"

Morley lit a cigarette slowly. He must lead Lon on.

"All right," he said, with feigned reluctance, "I am."

Lon grinned smugly. "Perhaps we can be of use to each other. I can close my eyes to many things—to further my own ends."

A sharp knock sounded upon the door. Morley frowned, but opened the door and saw the pursuer in the passageway.

"What luck, Benson?"

"None at all. Ellis is a touchy old fellow. Says he's already put the pearls—!" He broke off as he saw Phil Lon.

Morley invited him in and closed the door.

"It's quite all right to talk before Mr. Lon."

"Mr. Ellis says he has already put the pearls in a safe place," said Benson. "I was unable to get into his confidence. He distrusts me, the rest of the ship's officers—everybody."

Lon turned to Morley and asked pointedly: "The pursuer—he is in your confidence?"

"Yes—Benson and I understand each other," Morley replied enigmatically.

After that, Lon became strangely uncommunicative, and soon departed. Benson left immediately afterward.

As Morley prepared for bed, his thoughts were confused. He was at a loss to explain Phil Lon. The Chinese professed to have no interest in the fortune in pearls that John Ellis possessed. What then? The trade pact?

Up early for a stroll on deck. He met Sylvia, looking fresh and boyish, with her hair tousled by the wind, on the boat deck.

"Hello, Hugh Morley," she greeted him cheerily.

"Hello, my dear," he said to her. She walked fast, her head up, her slim shoulders squared, her arms swinging.

"Miss Ames—Sylvia," he said, a trifle awkwardly. "I wanted to tell you that I was very much in earnest last night."

"Last night?" she queried, with raised eyebrows.

"Yes. When I told you that, subconsciously, I had long been searching for a girl like you, I meant it."

"How nice," she said, with exasperating unconcern.

He was ruffled. "And another thing—there's absolutely no need for you to go about warning people against me."

"Well," she looked surprised. "Oh, I'm not so sure."

"What do you mean by that?"

She gave him one of her probing glances. "Just before you came on deck just now I was having an interesting discussion with Mr. Lon. We were discussing you."

Three Steps in Polly's Health Protection

With his stethoscope the doctor is listening to the sounds in Polly's lungs. He hears no strange nor suspicious noises that his ear is trained to recognize as symptoms of tuberculosis, but he is not satisfied with that method of diagnosis only. She is given a tuberculin test which will show whether tuberculosis germs have entered her body. Polly's "scratch" after two days became red and slightly swollen indicating that infection has occurred. She may have this first infection, however, without having the disease. To find out definitely if any harm is being done to her lungs the next important step will follow. "Take a deep breath and hold it!" and the magic X-ray has photographed Polly's lungs. Shadows on the X-ray plate reveal the disease in its early forms when a cure may be more easily effected. But no shadows on Polly's plate! What's related to her and to her parents to know for certain that she is a healthy little girl! Christmas Seals help support these three steps that protect the health of thousands of boys and girls throughout the country. Christmas Seals are sold between Thanksgiving and Christmas to fight tuberculosis.

Threat of Race Battle Is 'Dud'

A vengeful negro who was on his way home to get a gun and polish off a Mexican worried police a bit yesterday afternoon, but so far today no murders had been reported.

J. T. Nichols called at the police station yesterday and told officers he had seen a negro, with a deep cut in one hand, near the American Legion hall. The negro, he said, had refused to give his name or come to the police station, but said a Mexican had cut

CONVICT JEW IN NAZI MURDER

CHUR, Switzerland. (AP)—David Frankfurter, young Jewish medical student, was convicted today of the slaying of Wilhelm Gustloff, Nazi organizer in Switzerland, and sentenced to 18 years in prison.

Frankfurter was ordered expelled from Swiss territory after serving his sentence. He was given credit for eight months which he had already spent in jail.

The 18-year term had been demanded by the prosecution during final summations Saturday in which Frankfurter was charged with premeditated murder.

The defense contended the student was actuated by hatred of national Socialism resulting from persecution of Jews in Germany.

CHEAPER FIRE INSURANCE SOUGHT

School Board to Check Rates; Value Plants At $1,587,000

Whether the new high school buildings, which couldn't be fired with a torch except for wooden fixtures inside separate rooms, should be insured at all was a question which stumped the school board last night.

It was brought out that the new buildings are fire-proof, and that the insurance paid on the plant now amounts to $530 a year, the buildings being insured at a value of $260,000.

Because they are public buildings, members of the board expressed the opinion that insurance should be carried on them, although if they were private buildings probably this would not be the case. It is believed that the insurance rate can be substantially reduced on these buildings, because of their fire-proof construction.

The discussion brought out that insurance amounting to $529,000, about one-third of the total $1,587,000 carried on Santa Ana school plants, expired on Dec. 1 and that the board pays approximately $3385.60 in annual premiums.

Following a discussion on the value of having appraisals made of the school plant with the view of possibly reducing insurance premiums, the board authorized President George Wells to name a committee to investigate insurance rates and report back to the board. M. E. Youel was named on this committee. He will work with the State Association of School Trustees on the problem. The state group, it was said, now is working on the matter of fire insurance premiums on school plants.

The local board now pays about 64 cents per $100 in insurance rates.

Board Rejects Injury Claims

Two claims presented on behalf of school children injured while playing at school were ordered rejected by the school board last night.

A $3000 claim presented for Shirley Combs Stone, who was injured when she stumbled and fell at McKinley school, was presented and rejected. A similar action was taken in regard to a $524 claim presented for Milton Farney, who slipped from a fence at Spurgeon school while attempting to pick pepper berries from a tree.

Thelma Todd Leaves $33,715

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The current value of the estate of Thelma Todd, who died a year ago tomorrow, was set today at $33,715.

The final accounting was presented to Superior Judge Clarence L. Kincaid on behalf of Mrs. Elizabeth Todd, the actress' mother. Mrs. Todd will receive the entire amount except for one dollar, which goes to Pasquale Di Cicco, Miss Todd's former husband.

Taxes and administration costs of $10,011.46 have been paid.

STEPHENSON BOOK BRINGS PICO DRAMA TO LIGHT

By ROCH BRADSHAW

Terry E. Stephenson has brushed the dust from musty court records and brought to light a little-known drama of early California history, through which moves the colorful figure of Pio Pico, last governor of California under Mexican rule.

On the stage with Pico are other well known characters of Southern California history, including Don Juan Forster of San Juan Capistrano.

The story has just been published in book form under the title of "Forster vs. Pico, a California Cause Celebre." The articles, first appearing in the quarterly of the Historical Society of Southern California, have been revised and amplified in the book, which contains reproductions of eight pictures, some of them hitherto unpublished. One of these is an oil painting of Pio Pico, now hanging in the Bowers museum here.

Pico's Own Account
The volume, printed by the Fine Arts Press of Santa Ana, under Thomas E. Williams, and bound by A. G. Flagg, Santa Ana printer and book binder, is dedicated to Mrs. Stephenson. Stephenson, an authority on Southern California history, has published a number of other books.

"Of most importance and interest," wrote Stephenson in the foreword, "is the translation of Pio Pico's account of his flight from California at the time of the Conquest (by the Americans) as it is given in his 'Narracion Historica' in the Bancroft library. Also, perhaps for the first time there appears in print the story of Don Juan Bandini's effort to locate the hidden Mexican governor, and Pico's own story of the rapid change of flags at San Vicente."

Battle For Rancho
The first chapter begins: "Crowded with historical data as it is, the files of the once famous case of Juan Forster against Pio Pico, Andres Pico and the heirs of Jose Antonio Pico lie almost forgotten in the office of the county clerk of San Diego county. The trial was held in 1873. The issue before the court was the title to the great rancho Santa Margarita y Las Flores of 133,440 acres, on the northern border of San Diego county."

Flag Removed
When Pico arrived at San Vicente on his way south, he was invited by the alcalde to stop and rest. The alcalde did not recognize Pico. The former governor refused to dismount as long as the American flag flew there, whereupon it was ordered removed by the alcalde. This was done, although the alcalde protested his men had been unable to resist the invasion which placed it there.

The final chapter presents a picture of the cattle days in this country, as revealed by testimony of witnesses in the famous case.

Stephenson ends the book with the words: "Many years have passed since the Picos and Don Juan Forster were gathered to their fathers, but the portrait of a richly fascinating period of the past which they painted in this eventful legal proceeding seems worthy, indeed, to be rescued from its long-time sleep."

HONOR FIRST LADY
LOS ANGELES. (AP)—From the potters, candle makers and basket weavers of Alvera street today goes a special Christmas gift for Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt at Washington.

Each shopkeeper in the picturesque Mexican center contributed a gift for the president's wife, who has twice visited their little street.

M'COY PLANS TO ATTEND CONCLAVE

Henderson Says Other Jaysees Ought to Help on Cost

John McCoy, journalism instructor at Santa Ana Junior college, wants to attend a convention in St. Louis, but Superintendent F. A. Henderson thinks some 18 other schools should help pay his expenses. He expressed this view at last night's school board meeting.

The cost of McCoy's trip would be around $175, it was stated. Because McCoy is president of the Southern California Journalism Teacher's association, Henderson thinks it only proper that the other schools which McCoy represents should help pay the cost of the trip.

It is a convention of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism, to be held in St. Louis from Dec. 30 to Jan. 2, inclusive. McCoy plans to attend. McCoy plans to leave a few days early during the vacation period, and to visit the schools of journalism at Northwestern and the University of Chicago at his own expense.

Final day of the convention would be spent on the campus of the University of Missouri, which is said to have the finest school of journalism in the country.

The El Don fund at local junior college has funds sufficient for the trip, it was stated.

FIGHT FOR MAE WEST IS LOST

NEW YORK. (AP)—Frank Wallace, vaudeville actor, lost his court action today to have Mae West declared his legal wife after the film actress established she had "neither residence nor domicile" in this state for many years.

Supreme Court Justice Joseph M. Callahan, for this reason, ruled he could not serve her with notice of action by publication in newspapers of New York state.

Justice Callahan also said that an affidavit by Wallace revealed the couple were separated many years by mutual consent and that Wallace "went so far as to marry someone else from whom he has since been divorced."

Pantages Wealth Shrunk to $5000

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Alexander Pantages, theater magnate once a multi-millionaire, left an estate of $5000, his widow reported today.

The widow, Mrs. Lois Pantages, who is executrix, reported to Judge Clarence L. Kincaid that there were claims of approximately $1,500,000 against the estate, all of which she said she disallowed.

Mrs. Pantages said there is a bank claim of $1,200,000 in trust indentures, a talent contract claim by Columbia Pictures Corp. for $22,500, and another by Joseph J. Daynes, for 16 years manager of the Pantages theater in Salt Lake City.

Suicide Leaves 60-Page Letter

PARIS. (AP)—Police today disclosed that Mrs. Helen Breaker, an artist and photographer who once lived in St. Louis, Mo., had left a 60-page suicide letter, written over a period of eight months, before she was found dead in a gas-filled kitchen last Friday.

She was 46 years old and had been ill.

The letter, police said, was begun last April. Apparently Mrs. Breaker had added to it from time to time, relating her memoirs. It said she was tired of living. It was addressed to the police chief of suburban Auteuil. She had lived in Paris for eight years.

Union Organizer on Farm Committee

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Secretary H. L. Mitchell of the Southern Tenant Farmers union said he was advised today of the appointment of W. L. Blackstone of Wynne, Ark., to membership on President Roosevelt's farm tenancy commission.

Mitchell described Blackstone, a member of the Arkansas farm tenancy commission, as a sharecropper and an organizer for the union.

DUMP ZONING PROBLEM ON PLANNERS

Council Asks Advice on Petition from North Broadway Owners

City council will toss the zoning problem on North Broadway back in the laps of the planning commission.

A week ago the council considered a plea from property owners on North Broadway between 17th and 19th streets that the property in that section not now zoned for business or apartments, be so zoned.

The council gave the problem to the planning commission, which came back with a recommendation for denial, intimating that the planning body would approve zoning for apartments, but not for business.

The council agreed with the commission, and denied the request. Yesterday afternoon the property owners came back with another petition, asking that the zoning be rezoned for apartments, skipping the business building angle.

And the council will refer the request to the planning commission next Monday night.

BOARD ACTS ON SUBSTITUTES

Recommendation of Superintendent F. A. Henderson that Edith Drell, from U. C. L. A., be promoted placement in the Santa Ana school system as a substitute teacher, was approved by the school board last night.

Other business transacted included notifying Charles Webber, granted a leave from his teaching duties at Santa Ana High school, that he can report back to work on Feb. 1, as was agreed upon.

Request of Mrs. Dorothy Erickson for extension of her leave of absence, which expires Feb. 1, through the second semester, was granted.

The board, endorsing a plan whereby a substitute teacher, after the first 10 teaching days, would be paid on the basis of the minimum monthly salary for the respective assignment.

Balance Books on Jaysee Transfer

It's all right for students from Santa Ana to attend other junior colleges, and it's fine if students from other parts want to come here, but it becomes necessary if these conditions prevail, to enter into a agreement with other schools, else each school concerned will not receive attendance money from the state.

This was the reason given for the action of the school board last night in authorizing Superintendent F. A. Henderson to enter into such agreements with Long Beach, Fullerton and any other junior colleges involved in the local set-up.

Santa Ana has no students going to Long Beach Jaysee, but Long Beach has a student coming here. To make the situation conform to state laws, the board agreed to enter into the agreements outlined.

School Board to Have Yule Tree

The spirit of Christmas descended on the school board last night, with the result that in the near future the big tree in front of the Santa Ana Junior college building will be agleam with colored lights.

At the instigation of Dr. Margaret Baker, member of the board, the trustees voted to place Christmas lights on the college tree, at a cost not to exceed $50.

The plan first suggested was to light a tree in front of the high school auditorium at $75 cost. This plan was abandoned in favor of the one adopted.

Purchasing Agent Harold Yost said the school budget was a "little groggy," but could stand the $50 expenditure.

8 SHOPPING DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Santa and the Viking

He tip-toed slowly to her ice-couch

The story so far: The Fairy Queen has enticed the cruel Ice Queen from her palace so that Nils, a Viking, can enter it and rescue Gudrun, the daughter he has been seeking for 200 years.

Chapter Eight Nils Finds Gudrun

Inside the Ice Queen's palace there was another and more difficult problem for Nils to solve. He found his little daughter, Gudrun, sleeping prettily in her ice prison. But how could he melt the ice? How could he wake her from her long sleep?

He and his two Toyland companions were all alone in the palace. The queen was gone. Her cold winds ran howling for their cave when they saw Mister, the pup, because they remembered how he had chewed one of their brothers to bits. But the place was cold and barren.

"B-r-r-r," said Captain Buttons. "Wish I had my fur coat."

"Nonsense," snapped Mister. "You're bragging again. You have no fur coat."

Nils knelt beside her. But they stopped arguing when they saw Nils. He was so happy to see his daughter again that he tiptoed slowly to the ice-couch, and then knelt beside her and caressed the ice in which she was locked. She didn't stir.

The three hunted the whole palace for fire-wood to melt the ice around the little girl. But naturally the Ice Queen had no such thing around her palace. She fears fire as we fear witches.

There wasn't even a stout stick with which Nils could have chipped the ice. They tried to puff on the ice, hoping their warm breaths would melt it. But their breath only turned to small, smoky clouds.

Mister Runs for Advice
"Wait here," said Mister, the pup. "I'll run back to Santa for advice." He turned on his fat paws so fast that his hind legs slipped on the ice. He ran and ran for hours and hours until his paws were leaking saw-dust.

Finally he fell limply outside the door of Toyland, with just enough strength left to "Woof!" in a whisper.

Santa was fitting together a new toy train, but he heard the faint bark and ran to the door delighted. He had been worrying about Nils and the two toys.

"Hurrah!" he shouted, picking up little Mister in his arms, and carrying him to the fire. "Where's Nils?"

Mister woofed out the whole story, and Santa immediately set to work on a plan about which I will tell you tomorrow.

Tomorrow: Gudrun Is Freed.

TRASH TRUCK TO COST $3000

A new $3000 job will be rolling around Santa Ana soon—picking up garbage.

City council late yesterday authorized the purchase of a brand new White truck from the Sawyer Motor company, upon recommendation of City Engineer J. L. McBride and Street Commissioner Ernest L. Layton.

The truck will cost the city $2,100, but with the hoist and boby the cost will run close to $3000. The new garbage truck will be of the open type, so that it can be used for trash, if need be.

City councilmen explained that the higher priced truck is the best buy for the city because it stands rough usage longer without repair bills. Council considered the trade-in allowance of $499 and some cents a good deal for the old truck turned in on the new one.

INCREASE IN OUTPUT IS STRESSED

Summer Production Is Expected to Exceed Winter Crop

(Editor's Note: The following article is the first in a series of four which deal with the California agricultural outlook for 1937. The articles are based upon the 1937 agricultural outlook survey of the agricultural extension service, University of California. The material was obtained by experts of the agricultural extension service and the Giannini foundation.)

BERKELEY.—Average orange prices are unlikely to equal those of the post-war decade for some years to come because of rising world production, it is pointed out in the 1937 agricultural outlook of the agricultural extension service, University of California, just issued. California orange growers must look mainly to the domestic market to dispose of increased production.

The tendency over the next 10 years will be of summer orange production to approach or surpass winter oranges in volume. California now has about 97,900 acres of bearing winter orange trees, while Florida has about 106,500.

Non-Bearing Trees
Only 13 per cent of this California bearing acreage is not yet in full production, but almost half that of Florida and 93 per cent of the Texas acreage is yet to reach its full volume.

Regulated shipments out of the state have helped the California orange market in the past. If the same regulations are put into effect for Florida, both states will benefit. Likewise, anticipated betterment of consumer demand should materially improve winter orange prices in 1936-37. With the existing acreage situation, however, a surplus of winter oranges may be expected for some years to come.

Spanish War
The Spanish civil war may decrease competition for California winter oranges in world markets and the small apple crop may help support the local market in the present season. But the long term view is not so optimistic.

Likewise a strongly rising trend in summer orange production has set in. The 1937 Valencia crop prospect is 77 per cent of normal, as compared with 65 per cent in 1936. Florida, Texas and Arizona are not marketing as continuously during the summer months as the California growers. Nevertheless, there is an increasing tendency to spread such shipments from the first marketed states over a longer period.

Santa Ana Eastern Star Chapter Installs New Officers in Impressive Rites

Betty Gowdy Is Worthy Matron

Musical Numbers Fill Intervals in The Ceremonies

Ray Spauld, a past patron of Santa Ana chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, now residing in Carlsbad, returned to his former home town last night to act as master of ceremonies when the newly elected 1937 officers of his chapter were installed in beautiful ceremonies at the Masonic temple.

The impressive rituals were opened by the Bible escort, Mrs. Sue Henry, associate matron-elect, carrying the Bible to its place, with Mrs. Ellen Smith and Mrs. Jane Morse acting as her marshals.

Installing marshals, Irma Folger, a past matron of the chapter, and Cleone Chandler, wife of the worthy patron-elect, escorted the master of ceremonies and Jane Morse, the installing chaplain, into the room, and Mr. Spauld gave an address of welcome before introducing the installing officers.

Flora Bruns, retiring worthy matron, escorted into the room with her worthy patron, Carlyle Dennis, presided over the opening of the meeting, wearing a lovely blue tulle dress and carrying a bouquet of red roses.

Installing officers for the evening were Mrs. Lillian Edwards, deputy grand matron of the fifty-seventh district; Orice Orton, past matron of Huntington Beach, and Jennie Shippe, past matron of Santa Ana chapter.

Officers-elect were grouped on the stage when the curtain was drawn back, and from here they were led to places back of the altar, following the flag escort by Jessie Overton, the newly appointed flag-bearer.

Worthy matrons and worthy patrons of 1936 and past matrons and past patrons of Santa Ana chapter were given the next escort honors, and the installing rites were preceded by the installation prayer, given by Jane Morse, and the obligation, given by Carlyle Dennis.

Jennie Shippe had the honor of installing Betty Gowdy as the new worthy matron of the chapter, the latter wearing a beautiful gown of a gold shade, with an orchid corsage and a bouquet of fall flowers. The corsage was the gift of Mrs. Bessie Moore.

Carlyle Dennis installed his successor, Courtney Chandler.

Musical interludes Associate matron, Mrs. Sue Matron, was installed by Inice Orton, and associate patron, Forrest White, by Mr. Dennis; and a song, "Sweet Mystery of Life," sung by Russell Krause, followed these rituals, Mrs. Mayme Y. Havens, installing organist, accompanying.

Secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Estelle McFarrell and Mrs. Mary A. Bruns, were both installed by Mrs. Bruns; conductress and associate conductress, Mrs. Pearl Lyman and Mrs. Ellen Smith, by Mrs. Edwards.

Two brothers of the new worthy patron, Don and Harvey Chandler, and a Los Angeles friend, Bob Muttis, furnished the next musical interlude, playing steel guitar trio selections; and following these the other officers were taken to their stations. Mrs. Bruns installed the chaplain, Juanita Cozad, the marshal, Miss Hattie Basler, and the organist, Rose Chaste. Mr. Dennis installed Lillian Ellis as warder and Alex Rez as sentinel.

The five star points, kneeling at the altar while the lights were dimmed and while Mr. Krause sang "My Task," were installed by Mrs. Edwards, Miss Katherine Rousseau as Ada, Miss Katherine Goode as Ruth, Mrs. Virginia Holmes as Esther, Mrs. Janice Turner as Martha, and Mrs. Carrie Cole as Electa.

William Norval Holmes has been appointed keeper of the lights for the coming year and Mrs. Overton flagbearer.

Presentation Made The new worthy matrons and worthy patrons of 1937 were escorted; and a poem, written by Mrs. Helen Kellogg Aubin, was introduced, and a poem, written by her to accompany the coin box of her design which was presented to the chapter, was read by Mrs. Bruns. The box was made by Alex Rez, and plated by Harvey Dimmitt.

The worthy patron and worthy matron presented each other with orange wood gavels made by Lloyd Folger; and the past matrons' jewel was presented to Mrs. Bruns by Sadie Roehm, another past matron, and past patron's jewel to Mr. Dennis by Theodore Hunter, a past patron.

To conclude the ceremonies, Pearl Lyman closed the Bible, and the lodge adjourned until its Christmas party on Dec. 28.

THIRTY COUPLES ENJOY YULE DANCE

Gay red streamers with tinkling silver bells surrounded chandeliers in the Y. W. C. A. ballroom Saturday night when the Tri-Y girls entertained friends at an informal dance in honor of the approaching holidays.

Thirty couples participated in the evening's gaieties, which were featured by an entertaining floor show. Little Betty Vardy was the youngest of the artists performing, singing three songs, accompanied by her sister, Genevieve Vardy. Aberdeen Rubidoux and Leslie Adaire, pupils of Estlin Burks, danced a tango and a rumba, with Mrs. A. McConnell accompanying, and Betty Henderson did a tap dance with accompaniment by Beatrice Henderson.

The party was in the nature of a program dance, with music furnished by Hershall Albright and his amplifier, and punch and cookies were served throughout the evening.

Anita Potter had charge of the decorating, with Harriet Spicer, Anna Margaret Bell, Dorothy Parker and La Von Gold assisting. Program and programs were arranged by Doris Cave, chairman, Katherine Mather and Regine Clark. The refreshment committee were Grace Cook, Gloria Spoford, Harriet Hougham, Barbara Rowell and Pat Owens; and tickets were sold by Mary Jean Towler and Betty Neff.

BETHEL MOTHERS TO HAVE YULE PARTY

Mothers' circle of Job's Daughters will have its Christmas party on Thursday, the members gathering at 1 o'clock for a dessert course at the home of Mrs. Walter Hiskey, on South McClay avenue.

In the afternoon, in addition to election of officers and informal hours of chat, the group will exchange 25-cent gifts in observance of a Yuletide custom.

Directions for reaching Mrs. Hiskey's home have been given as follows: Go out McFadden to McClay, turn south and drive to the third house on the left, the Hiskey home.

WALKERS HOSTS TO ROOK CLUB

The Herbert Walker home in Tustin was the setting recently for the December meeting of a Tustin rook club, the members gathering for a 6:30 dinner served at small tables set in the Christmas motif.

Prizes in rook were won by Mrs. H. F. Taylor, high, and Mrs. Fred Wilson, second.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hoy of Santa Ana were invited as guests of the club for the evening, and members present were the Messrs. and Mesdames William Cook, Walter West, L. R. Stearns, H. M. Coate, Perry Groat, H. E. Taylor, Henry Meier, and Fred Wilson, of Tustin; Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Youngs and Mr. and Mrs. William Hutton of Anaheim, and the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dyer and Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Coate prepared and served the dinner, with Hugh Walker assisting in serving.

FIDELIS PARTY Fidelis class of the First Baptist church is to have its Christmas party at the home of Mrs. J. R. Farwell, 506 East Fifth street, on Thursday instead of at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Lamb, illness in the latter's family, making necessary a change in the plans. The party will start at 1 o'clock, and all members are urged to be present.

Santa Visits Committee Party

Members of the Edison Women's Committee of Orange County held their traditional Christmas party last night when they gathered at Daniger's, at a long banquet table festive with lighted red tapers, silver sprays of magnolia leaves, and vari-colored lustrous balls. These were arranged by the committee in charge, Olive Lund, Dorothy Rose Young, Anna Tiemann and Dolly Jane Alvord. Original place cards were painted by Miss Young.

After the delicious repast, Santa appeared with gifts for all, bearing an especially large one for Betty Rowland. This proved to be a waffle iron, a parting gift from the girls to Miss Rowland who is to marry Terry Stephenson, Jr., on Dec. 26, leaving the employ of the Edison company today.

R. E. Bacon, division manager, remembered the girls with a huge box of chocolates. The December meeting of this year is devoted to Christmas charity and after Santa had departed, discussion for contributing toward a needy cause ensued. While definite plans have not yet been made, it is believed the committee will contribute to the association caring for tubercular patients. In addition, a barrel is to be placed in the office for clothing, to be distributed among the less fortunate.

Mrs. Jeanette I. Rees, assistant secretary from the general office at Los Angeles, and general chairman of all Women's Committees on the Edison system, honored the girls with her presence, extending season's greetings and expressing her appreciation to the group for loyalty and cooperation. Other special guests included Violet Doane, Virginia Davis, and Kathryn Heine, traveling computer operators. The group numbered 24.

The January meeting will be in charge of the safety and first aid committee, with Josephine Hodson, chairman, assisted by Anne Goltzbach and Willetta Reid.

Yocum, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shugart, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Dusen, Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. McKamy and Mr. and Mrs. Edwards.

The Daughters at their last meeting had decided not to participate in this activity this year, but on urgent invitation from the men's organization have reconsidered, and Mrs. Overton urges them all to attend. The supper hour is set for 6:30 o'clock.

FUTURE BRIDE IS HONOREE

A shower of interest to the younger set was that given last week-end by Mrs. Glenn Eustace to the bride-to-be, Miss Ruth Dunn, who was the first of several that will precede the early wedding of Miss Ruth Dunn and Max Appleby, both well-known young Santa Anans.

When the matrons and misses had all gathered at the Eustace home, they were served a delicious dessert course at tables attractively decorated with red tapers in Christmas holders. Especially beautiful poinsettias were used throughout the living rooms of the home.

Immediately following this, the honoree was presented with many lovely packages which concealed lingerie for the pretty bride-to-be. The shower was especially thoughtful in that, in addition to the personal gifts, the guests spent the remainder of the evening in hemming tea-towels for Miss Dunn.

Those invited to the affair by Mrs. Eustace were Mrs. Charles Leiner, who assisted her in serving, Mrs. E. J. Rose, Mrs. Rose Dunn, Mrs. Lina Rosenbaum, Mrs. Ernest Dunn, Miss Frances Dunn, Miss Lucille Dunn and Miss Shirley Leimer, all of Santa Ana, and Mrs. Paul Brown, Miss Effie Barnes, Miss Maude Barnes and Miss Julene Brown of Glendale.

CHURCH WOMEN MEET The Women's Missionary society of Calvary church will meet Thursday for an all day session with a potluck luncheon at noon. Mrs. James R. Smith will be hostess at 1222 South Ross street, and Mrs. Ralph Scoville of the China Inland Mission will speak during the afternoon.

Folk Singers Delightful At Ebell

A delightful old-world atmosphere, in which one could almost smell the goose roasting on the spit and the hearty flavor of yesterday's Christmas meeting of the Santa Ana Valley Ebell club, when members were entertained for an hour by the Tudor singers.

The famous a cappella group was charming in every detail—selection of program—vocal tone—and enchanting costumes.

The first half of their program was devoted to a group of Elizabethan love songs, sonnets, and madrigals, and they were beautifully garbed—the two men in velvet doublets slashed with satin, long silk hose and colorful jackets, while the two women wore elaborate figures in elaborate pink and blue brocade, with jeweled hair bands.

Among their numbers in this group were several of Shakespeare's lovely songs—one the lovely "I know a Bank Where the Wild Thyme Blows" from "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and the other one of the outstanding songs of the afternoon, the exquisite "She Never Told Her Love." Delightful too was the Purcell solo "Till I Die," a sequel to "Passing By" as it was sung the tenor of the quartet.

Old French and English carols completed the group after the lulling madrigal "I Know a Young Lady Wondrous Fair." The quartet presented the quaint "Leave Your Sheep" and "The Holly and the Ivy," while soprano and contralto solos were "A Christmas Dream" and "The Three Kings."

After an intermission, they reappeared in English pastoral costume, laced and with great puffed paniers of colored silks. Their second group was a charming shepherd's cycle entitled "Flora's Holidays," as composed of numerous English folk songs.

The program was preceded by a brief business meeting presided over by Mrs. F. C. Rowland, president. A treasurer's report for the year, composed by Miss Mabel McFadden, was read by Mrs. W. S. Thomson, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur Travick presented a report on the Day Nursery, prepared by the Mrs. A. G. Flag.

Mrs. R. G. Tutthill spoke briefly on the "Poppy Planting" campaign, urging the members to cooperate in every way, and Mrs. Rowland dismissed the session with a holiday greeting.

LIBRARIAN IS SPEAKER AT SECTION TEA

Miss Dorothy Wents, county librarian, spoke on "Christmas Books" Friday afternoon when she was guest speaker for the modern literature section of Santa Ana Ebell club.

A Christmas tea followed the program, with Mrs. Lloyd Chenoweth, Mrs. Dexter Ball, and Mrs. Earl Abbey as co-hostesses for the tea hour. Mrs. Horace Stevens and Mrs. M. B. Wellington presided at the pretty red and white table centered with red candles in silver holders.

Guests sharing the afternoon with the section members were Mrs. M. McMurray and Mrs. F. P. Jayne.

CONTRACT SECTION

Mrs. Paul Howe, Mrs. Ralph Cunningham, Mrs. Don Harwood, and Mrs. G. Stanley Norton are to be co-hostesses to Ebell club's contract bridge section when it meets at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the clubhouse. An informal evening of cards is planned.

Mary Stoddard Groping Father Asks Parents if They Can Accept the Challenge of Youth

By MARY STODDARD

Because the youth of today is beginning to think and act for itself, Old Dame Convention is literally running around in circles.

Some of the "don'ts" of yesteryear become the "do's" of today. A man who signs himself "Father Barbour" reflects upon this and other modern happenings. We take it that he is a father and is searching for the honest opinions of other parents about this state of affairs.

He brings forth some timely topics. Youth as been forced through economic pressure and onto the highways and byways of life to fight for an education, and often a existence.

If young people seem rash sometimes when they tear some of the old conventions to shreds, I believe that an older generation is largely responsible for letting an economic and social structure crumble to such an extent that youth is put on the spot where it must clamber for the survival of the fittest.

Here is his letter: Dear Miss Stoddard: The other evening I attended a P. T. A. meeting and the speaker of the evening likened the relation between parents and children to a dance.

He said the younger generation were continually learning new steps and if the parents were to dance with the youth of today, they must learn the new steps.

Youth is forming its own ideas of religion, government, morality, marriage and the other important things in each and every life. They are beginning to question the things which we of 20 or 30 years ago accepted without reservation.

Refreshments of white cake and red and green jello were served at a long, banquet-like table, covered with a Santa Claus-beige cloth and centered with a miniature Christmas tree. Favors were small packages of candy wrapped in red cellophane with a small candy cane in the center of each.

Guests were Thelma Sharp of Santa Ana; Robert and George Weibrecht of Orange; Robert Giddings of Yorba; Bill Metzger of Anaheim; Alexandra Wheaton of Newport Beach; Roberta Williams and Marjorie Weeks of Costa Mesa, and Miss Greta Clark of Balboa Island. Miss Ruth Bartlett was unable to attend.

Parents present as guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Wheaton, Mrs. A. Metzger, Mrs. A. Giddings and her son, Mr. Giddings, and Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Huffine. Mr. and Mrs. George Weibrecht, who were also invited sent regrets.

THREE-FIFTHS SIGNED FOR PENSIONS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Officials expressed satisfaction today at the rate of registration for federal pension accounts after a check showed three-fifths of the eligible employers and more than two-fifths of the workers have signed.

There is no need, they said, for a second extension of the deadline for workers' applications which expires tomorrow.

11 Per Establishment

The latest tabulation of forms returned to the social security board's Baltimore office showed about 2,200,000 from employers and 22,000,000 from employees, against original estimates of 3,500,000 and 26,000,000, respectively.

Since an average employment of 11 in an establishment was indicated, the number of eligible workers may go above 30,000,000.

Although the lists probably will be incomplete at the deadline, indications are that summary action against delinquents will be deferred. No instance of willful avoidance of the law has been reported, it was said.

Many Taken Back

Reporting that the peak had been passed in their task, postal authorities began reducing staffs at centers where the applications have been handled.

Arrangements to take back many soon were being made, however, as the postoffice will co-operate similarly for registration of railroad workers under that special pension act.

Galli-Curci Will Visit Laguna

Plans for a visit from the great Galli-Curci some time soon after the holidays are being made by Miss Florence Yoch and Miss Lucille Council of Pasadena, who are spending their week-ends at their new home recently completed in Sleepy Hollow Lane at Laguna Beach.

To hear the broadcast of the singer given last Sunday night over the radio, Miss Yoch and Miss Council, who are close friends of the artist, gathered at the home of Miss Yoch's sister, Mrs. N. E. West on Cliff Drive, who entertained them at dinner and a radio party.

After listening to the broadcast, they sent a congratulatory telegram to Galli-Curci, who has visited frequently at Laguna, and who on a recent visit gave the name Sul Mare to the new Yoch-Council residence.

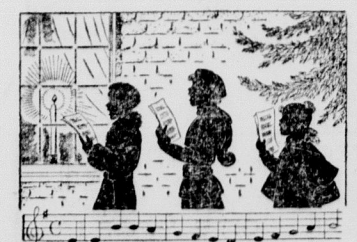

Cooking School Has Yule Theme

Mrs. Margaret Lackland, another home service director for the Southern Counties Gas company, will be guest demonstrator at the gas company's cooking school tomorrow. Guards Changed for Last Time Under Edward

Although the British empire was stirred by the abdication of one king and the accession of another, the ceremony of royalty went on just the same. Abnormal Thyroid May Harm Heart

By CLAUD CHRISMAN, M. D.

We should try to find out the source of the heart's misbehavior, for until we do, it is difficult to decide upon any medical treatment for the condition. But the general situation remains the same; we find an organ overdone and the first step is to reduce the strain upon it.

In a case that has been diagnosed as a goiter heart, if this heart is due to the effects of a toxic goiter, the removal of a part of the thyroid, or some treatment designed to overcome this toxicity will probably relieve the heart condition.

On the other hand, suppose the trouble is due to other infections, an operation may even add to the trouble by inciting the source of the infection.

The history of the case includes shortness of breath, a feeling of exhaustion from no apparent reason, often a sense of shaking inside that is very wearing.

It is quite likely that we shall find nothing so very serious the matter with the heart itself with even a rigid examination. The muscles seem to be firm, the valves are working smoothly, there is no enlargement. The jittery behavior is found to be occasioned by the toxic effect of the abnormal thyroid activity on the nervous mechanism that controls the rate and regularity of its contractions. If this is allowed to continue or nature does not adjust the activity of the thyroid gland, the heart will finally show an increasing mechanical injury due to strain and irregular control.

The muscles begin to grow weaker, the organ enlarges, presently the valves are leaking and the efficiency in general will show the deteriorating effects.

In any case, the first injunction should be a period of bed rest—that is imperative in spite of all remonstrance. If you are sure you have an athlete's heart, then the sentence will be, stop all exercise for a term until all nervous symptoms have subsided. And the tobacco user, who has been told he has a "tobacco heart"—let him put aside any indulgence in the weed for the time.

GARDEN CLUB MEETS

The Better Gardens club will meet tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. with Miss Peggy Adams, 203 West 19th street. Miss Vanche Plumb will speak on birds.

THORN in the FLESH

By GLENN L. THORNE

I've been so busy trying to settle affairs over in England the past few days that I nearly forgot to remember things that's lots more important, here at home.

It has just dawned on my weak mind that there's only 8 more shopping days until Christmas, and that I'd better get busy. So in a couple days I'll make out a list of things I need and want, and another list that I don't have much use for, such as buggy whips.

Right now I'm worrying about these short days, and goodness knows I don't have time to go around as it is.

Only 8 more short shopping days. It usually takes me one whole day to make up my list of who. That leaves 7. Then it usually takes me 2 days to decide on what for who. That leaves 5. And it usually takes me that long to find something for "Alice" that will surprise her. (If I succeed, then I'm nothing flat in time for Christmas shopping, which I was in money before I started. So the time and my money balance. That's something.)

What I'd like to know is, why do short days and being short on money always come just at Christmas time?

Is there a Santa Claus? Gosh, I hope so!

To Dance Here

TED SHAWN

Out of years of study, research and travel in all parts of the world, Ted Shawn and his company of eight men dancers, have created a program so broad in scope and variety that it is often called "a dance-drama of peoples."

Shawn and his company are to feature one of the events of the Behymer-Wilson Artist Series being brought to Santa Ana by the Musical Arts club.

The season will open Jan. 2 with a concert by Nelson Eddy. Following him will be Rose Bampton, Metropolitan singer; Alberto Salvi, world famous harpist; Homer Simmons, "poet of the piano" and at the conclusion the Ted Shawn dancers.

Season tickets for the five concerts are on sale at the Santa Ana bookstore, 208 West Fourth street. The Musical Arts club is sponsoring the season here.

Dry Skins Need Oil

By JACQUELINE HUNT

General rules are often given for cleansing and treating the skin and these can generally be varied and adapted by the user to suit her own needs. Dry skin, however, needs a whole special paragraph to itself, so necessary is it to soothe and protect this type at the same time as cleaning it.

Never use an astringent on a dry, sensitive skin, even though your skin is flabby and wrinkled. Use muscle oils that are softening and slightly astringent, rich tissue creams and skin tonic, or if tonic seems too strong, cold water. Water cannot harm the most delicate skin and it is gently toning and firming.

Many of you seem to have the idea that a sudden burst of interest in beauty treatments can make up for a long period of neglect. It is true you can improve the condition of neglected hair, hands, skin or figure, but you can never quite restore them to their original loveliness. Use every ounce of your skill and knowledge to prevent beauty troubles and you will never have to worry about corrective measures. You can be confident, secure and beautiful for ever afterward.

Breakfasters to Have Yule Program

Partaking of the yuletide spirit the Breakfast club program next Thursday morning will include the traditional Christmas trees, with the Santa Claus accompaniment. The presents will be for the "Crippled Children."

Christmas carols will be included in the club singing. An appropriate address will be given by Rev. Harry Owens. The ladies are invited. The program is in charge of Harold Mathews.

L. A. POPULATION SOARS
LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Los Angeles' population was estimated today at 1,531,764, a new high mark. The figure was estimated on the basis of the 720,834 names in the new city directory by multiplying the total by 2 1/4, to allow for children and others unlisted.

PIMPLY CHIN IS UNDOING OF TWIN

NEW YORK, (AP)—A tell-tale pimple on the chin of a twin saved Patrolman Vincent Slater from having to exercise the wisdom of a Solomon in court today.

Slater arrested Martin and Harvey Berger, 16-year-old twins, for driving an allegedly stolen car.

"Dead ringers," said the magistrate, and then to Patrolman Slater: "Which one was driving?"

"That's Martin," he said, "and that's Harvey—and Martin was driving the car."

"How do you know?" asked the magistrate.

"A pimple," said Slater, triumphantly. "When I arrested 'em, I noticed the driver had a pimple on his chin. It's still there."

The magistrate held both brothers under bail of $250 each.

TREASURE CHEST OPENED AT BENEFIT PARTY

Little ships on blue mirrors, which formed the centerpiece for the refreshment tables at the American Legion Auxiliary benefit party last night in the Legion hall, were later presented as prizes to high score holder at each table.

In addition, treasures were taken from the treasure chest and presented to other lucky winners during the evening, these including the Mesdames Hannah Anderson, Floyd Howard, Grace Carnahan, Marion Dodder, W. Casey, Ted Volte, C. H. Johnson, E. J. Vosskuhl, and B. T. Shifflett; and Messrs. Robert Sandon and Henry Schlueter.

Christmas pudding and coffee were enjoyed at the close, the Yuletide wreaths and the decorated tree in the hall giving the appropriate atmosphere for the season. Thirty-four tables were in play during the evening.

Lasting Beauty in Filet Crochet

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Use String For an Effective Cloth or Bedspread

PATTERN 5730

If "Time is Money" you're on your way to riches when you spend some minutes each day crocheting this handsome spread. Or, in even less time, your crochet hook can run off enough of these simple eight inch squares for a lacy pillow top, handkerchief case or bureau scarf. Full-blown roses, done in solid stitch, are prettily set off by both a filet mesh and lace stitch. Lovely, too, as refreshment cloth. In pattern 5730 you will find instructions and a chart for making the square shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Journal, Household Arts Dept., 117 East Fifth Street, Santa Ana. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and

ANNUAL FARM MEET TO BE DEC. 21

About 300 persons are expected to attend the second annual Orange County Farm Bureau convention to be held at 10 a. m. Monday, Dec. 21, at the Garden Grove Woman's clubhouse. It was announced yesterday by Dian R. Gardner, president of the bureau.

Sessions will be held all day, it was announced. One of the features of the meeting will be a beef and bean barbecue, free to those attending, to be served at the noon hour.

Various State Farm bureau officials will speak at the convention sessions. Von T. Ellsworth, tax expert of the state organization, and W. F. Eldredge, chairman of the Southern California Farm bureau, will lead discussions on activities of the recent national and State Farm bureau conventions at Pasadena.

Separate meetings of various departments of the Farm bureau are planned to be held before the opening of the convention general. Election of department chairmen not yet chosen, and plans for future work will feature the departmental sessions.

Seeks Partition Of Local Lot

Orange county superior court today was asked to become a subdivider when Rosa Newman, Santa Ana, petitioned for partition of a lot here in which she holds a third interest.

She asked that the court determine which portion of the lot should be her separate property. She now holds the property, by inheritance, in common with Louis A. Newman and Edith J. Condra, according to her petition.

be given her, entitling her to call for her umbrella. And we got that rain!

ANAHEIM WOMAN WINNER OF RAIN CONTEST

The Journal's one-inch rain contest is over. All the weather forecasters that sent in their guesses during the past two months can pick up their marbles.

Mrs. George Selsing of R. D. 2, Anaheim, is winner of the new umbrella, to be donated by Rankin's store for the one guessing nearest the correct date for start of the rain. Mrs. Selsing's prediction was for Dec. 12, at 8 p. m. The rain started yesterday, shortly after noon.

At least two guesses were received yesterday, naming yesterday as the probable starting date, but as they were mailed after the rain had started, they could not be counted.

If Mrs. Selsing will call at The Journal a letter to Rankin's will

Let's Improve the Bowl

EVER since the word "tax" became the symbol by which man paid to be governed, the taxpayer's dollar has taken a terrific beating through its expenditure on projects whose worth has been questionable.

It is because of such expenditures that countless taxpayers' leagues have been organized to investigate the use of public funds on this or that project, their purpose chiefly being to dig Ethiopians out of woodpile and let the taxpayer's gaze focus on proposals which, if allowed to be perpetrated, would result in a shameful waste of money.

Being fully aware of what some of our own tax dollars have been used for in the past we nevertheless challenge any taxpayers' organization to question the worth of a project now under serious consideration by the city council.

It is the proposed expenditure of $6,000 for improvements and expansion of Santa Ana's Municipal bowl. To us, the expenditure of public funds on any project intended to bring happiness and pleasure to the public at large and to aid our children in becoming healthy and strong men and women by the development of their bodies and minds on the playground or sports field, is justified without question.

Santa Ana is growing rapidly, and attendance at a number of events staged during the past year in the bowl have shown conclusively that 500 more seats proposed to be added under the expansion program are necessary.

And it must be remembered that addition of a playground for children will keep a few hundred more of our boys and girls off the streets and out of mischief when vacation days roll around again next summer.

Our municipal bowl is an asset to the city. No one can deny that improvement of an asset makes it just that much more valuable.

Yesterday's forecast by the U. S. weather bureau for last night was "unsettled." Nobody could accuse those gentlemen of not being conservative.

Markets and Wars

"IT IS NECESSARY that the United States produce within its borders, a sufficient quantity of articles absolutely necessary for home consumption and defense in time of war and stress," declares W. Cameron Forbes, former United States ambassador to Japan.

Forbes thinks clearly. Just as an adequate military defense to our coasts is necessary, so is an ability to feed and clothe our nation, even if all outside commerce is cut off. The iron blockade which the allies put around Germany in the World War played a vital part in her ultimate defeat.

In order to build up this necessary power of production, Forbes believes that we should have some arrangement with such nations as have been dumping goods on our markets, so that home industry and workers may be protected.

Something along those lines will help us in our national defense program, by building home industries. By that is not meant that old-style protective tariff. Rather, America should continue along the present policy of reciprocal trade agreements, such as we have now with France and Canada.

These treaties do not block trade; rather they stimulate it by controlling it and directing it along trade channels that are beneficial to all nations involved.

We received our social security act number today. You may now address personal mail to us as follows: "Mr. 554-09-4015."

Take 'Em or Leave 'Em

SHOULD John Q. Citizen come home from his office or store some evening weary from the day's labor and discover his parkway still piled high with the trash he so laboriously placed there early that morning for collection by the city, no doubt his first inclination will be to deliver an oration the content of which would not be fit for Little Audrey's ears.

But when he cools down he'll probably begin to take inventory of his trash, for he will have remembered by then that the city council yesterday adopted eight rules concerning collection of the junk for which he has no further use.

He'll learn why the trash collectors turned up their noses at his accumulation and passed it by, and the next week when they arrive at his curb he'll be certain he hasn't violated any of the rules—that is, if he wants his trash carted away.

The motto of the council seems to be: "Eight rules for trash—take 'em or leave 'em. If you don't take 'em, the trash collectors will leave your trash."

Play Santa to the Needy

HUNDREDS of poor little girls and boys in Santa Ana will be made happy this Christmas because of the generosity of the Broadway theater, Warner Bros. motion picture company and employees of the theater, who are staging their annual Christmas show next Saturday for youngsters of the city.

The admittance fee is a gift, which will be distributed to some needy child by the P.-T. A.

If all the children of more fortunate parents would be made to realize what those gifts will mean to their recipients, we doubt if there is a theater in all Southern California large enough to accommodate the audience that would turn out.

Whimsies of O. O. McIntyre

The brisk and highly sanitized modern barbershop, with its surgical amphitheater glitter, electrical gadgets and aroma of antiseptic sprays is keeping with the modern germ thought. But one somewhat expects upon entering to be hospitalized, rather than tonsured.

I peered into one today. It might have been a "take" out of a cinema cyclorama—with script by Gene Markey and music by Jerome Kern. A row of 50 chairs with barbers at attention all in white from bow tie to canvas shoes as though poised to go into a Fred Astaire routine.

Here and there geysered jets of steam, violet and pink electric tubes flashed and there was an effluvia of clogging exotic scents. All that mellow indolence and whistling clean bay rum aroma of the old shop lost in antiseptic and regimentation. No reprieve. Everything grim, clock-like.

One missed the shirt-sleeved polisher who napped beside his high chair between shines and became a whisk broom virtuoso—ack-ty-ack, ack-ty-ack—as he pursued you to the door. Wise crackers in the rear have vanished along with the virtuoso who twanged "Suavane" on the shop's rickety banjo.

So many names running through the news are confusing. A city editor hands me a few often used ones for the other: Leland Hayward and Weldon Heyburn; S. A. Berham and Sam Berman; S. Jay Kaufman and George S. Kaufman; Ernie Holst and Lou Holst; Sinclair Bob Hearing and Fred Waring; Wolfe Kahn and L. Wolfe Gilbert; Bob Haring and Fred Waring; Roland Young and Gilbert Roland and despite the dissimilarity Edna Ferber and Fannie Hurst are among the confusables.

The passing of the magazine Life editorially stressed the point that in the spoil time it has become "dated." That its humor had come up from behind. Life has nothing left of the old now but its name, so a comment on its real cause of failure will not be kicking it while down. Once the ace humor magazine, Life lowered its standard and slipped from a high place. Had it stuck to its original he-she joke simplicities it may have survived. London Punch is the Life of England and without ever a change in format of style of contents still continues in a coveted place among discriminating readers. It refuses as Life did, to sway from adherence to quality during a world-wide glorification of the trivial, the banal and wildly eccentric. A copy of Life, say of 25 years ago, is a treasure today. Every paragraph, every picture a polished gem. Oliver Herford, John Kendrick Bangs, Flagg, Gibson, Metcalf and so on without end.

Food first and art afterward note: Harry Richman devours a whopping sandwich of hamburger just before he goes out on the cabaret floor to do his act.

There's a legend Caruso did not eat for six hours before an operatic role. The truth: Often he went directly from dinner to the Metropolitan bursting with spaghetti, chianti and song. He always began to sing after a hearty breakfast. Press agents for prima donnas have perpetuated the saga about "food and song." Most operatic stars are lousy eaters as their avoirdupois attests. Chalapin enjoyed a chunky sirloin for breakfast.

Again the season has demonstrated the decline of the gorgeous girl—the eclipse of the glamor girl. A newcomer, Marta Abba, imported by Gilbert Miller, is an actress with a peasant and loutish awkwardness but won high critical plaudits as well as sweeping first nighters to their feet. She learned to speak English. The list of unglamorous lassies grows.

Patsy Kelly, the No. 1 picture stealer is no drenching beauty. Katharine Cornell, lacking the usual requirements, is regarded by many as the foremost dramatic actress. Art over all and all that.

Poignancy or something note: The Broadway columnists are continually stressing the lachrymose sentimentality they come upon in their faithful rounds of the night clubs. At some table a forlorn worldling struggling to keep back the tears, while watching the cuties cavort, because his dear mother was just taken to a hospital. Or the recently widowed beauty, trying to forget last week's sorrow, in a surround of balloons, popping corks and hide-ho. Very heart wrenching.

BRIGHT MOMENTS
Baron Edward Thurlow, while chancellor of England, was one day accosted by a curate who had no patrons among the great, but a large family to support. The chancellor was struck with his appearance and manner of speech, and after hearing his story, whimsically asked: "Whom have you to recommend you?" "Only the Lord of Hosts, my lord." "Well," replied Thurlow, "as this is the first recommendation I have had from his Lordship, he assured that I shall attend to it."

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—Some of those close to the President are suggesting that he might crown his peace efforts at Buenos Aires by setting aside Dec. 15 and June 15 as "Keep Out of War" days.

These two days are the due dates of the chief allied war debt payments.

Recent reports from Europe indicate that the ex-aliens are anxious to make sufficient token payments on their debts to avoid technical default and the Johnson plan this would impose against borrowing further funds in the United States.

These overtures may be welcomed in the state department, but some White House advisers are pointing out that the President could perform one of the greatest peace-strokes in history by settling the war debts up as a constant reminder that the obligations of the last conflagration are unpaid, never will be paid in full, and that the United States cannot afford to get entangled in another debacle of lending money to Europe.

Any payments to be made by the allies now, these advisers say, would be a mere pittance in contrast to the importance of reminding future generations against the dangers of European entanglements—financial or otherwise.

Twice a year—on Dec. 15 and June 15—future presidents could hold up the debts as a national reminder against the pitfalls of Europe. Serving such purpose they would be worth all their original investment. Otherwise they are almost valueless—and if settled for token payments, might become a drag into the European imbroglio.

STRANGER THAN FICTION
This is a success story that is stranger than fiction. The hero is a youth who at age 25 had an $1800 job with Harry Hopkins, got raised, then fired, and now is cushioned in a lifetime job at $6000 a year.

The youth is Collas G. Harris, and it was a craftily organized drag on Capitol Hill that made him such a success.

In the early days of FERA, Harris was taken on as a reception clerk. This meant that when job hunters came to interview Hugh O'Donnell, the personnel officer, Harris took their names and kept them in line for the interviews.

But jobs were few, and O'Donnell grew tired of listening to hard-luck stories and saying "No" all day. So he fixed it for Harris to take over that unpleasant chore for him.

Just as he did so there came a change in policy. Hopkins started the CWA and things began to hum. Business picked up in the personnel office. Harris stopped saying "No" and began to say "Yes."

And whenever he placed somebody, he shrewdly called up the congressman concerned and said, "I have been able to place your candidate, Mr. Congressman."

Soon Harris became a personal director and surrounded himself with a corps of assistants. When word was carried to Hopkins of how this young prodigy was building himself up, he said, "Fire him."

ABORTIVE CONFERENCE

The utility-inspired proposal to pool private and TVA power production has become a red-hot issue throughout the South.

The plan was trotted out at a White House conference last summer by Wall Street emissaries of the power interests. It has the support of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the TVA, and Basil Manly, vice chairman of the federal power commission.

Liberals in congress and in the administration, led by Senator George Norris, father of the TVA, are violently opposed to the scheme; charge that it is a scheme of the utilities to outwit the government and gain control of federal power projects.

The intensity of feeling that has developed against the plan in the South was vividly demonstrated last week at a meeting of several hundred city officials in Chattanooga, Tenn.

The session had been called for the purpose of forming a permanent organization to act as a link between the TVA, the utilities and the cities.

The anti-pool forces produced a letter from Norris assailing the utilities and blasting the pool plan. "We don't want to do business," the Nebraska wrote, "with those who have shown by their past conduct that they have neither honor, integrity, nor professional ethics. I see nothing in this so-called pool scheme."

Next followed a withering assault by George Dempster, city manager of Knoxville, who castigated the proposal to set up an organization as "an outrageous insult to the President and the TVA."

When the cheering and applause died down, Dempster delivered the knock-out blow by shouting, "I move we adjourn, forever."

The motion was adopted with a roar—and that ended this step in the pooling program.

NO RUM
This is a sad tale, mates! There will be no government rum from the Virgin Islands for the punch bowl this Yuletide.

This is not because there is a dearth of supply. The government has a large stock of the salubrious liquor on hand—465,966 gallons.

But it can't be sold. And the reason is lack of a name.

For months insular and interior department authorities have racked their brains for a fitting trade-name. Scores have been considered, but everytime one was deemed fitting investigation disclosed that it already had been registered by a private liquor manufacturer.

It's a tough problem because the name they want must convey the two-fold information that the rum is a government product and that it comes from the Virgin Islands.

Secretary Ickes is thinking of holding a contest with the catch of rum as the reward for a name. If you have any ideas, drop him a line.

In the meantime, however, the government's rum can not be marketed, because having no name, labels cannot be printed and without labels the bottled liquor cannot be offered for sale.

Frank Vegely has purchased of E. E. Wild the 50-foot vacant lot immediately south of the Central building on Main street. He will have plans drawn at once for a brick building to go up on the property. He is not decided as yet whether he will build one or two stories. Mr. Vegely is going into the automobile business, and will put in a first-class, up-to-date plant.

A pleasant family affair took place last evening when a turkey dinner was served at the home of Dr. H. E. Barnes, in celebration of the birthdays of S. H. Bradley of Los Angeles and Erwin Barnes. A red and white color scheme was used, holly and regal poinsettia being used. Covers were laid for S. H. Bradley, Miss Edgar, Miss Georgia Barnes, Dr. and Mrs. H. E. Barnes, Erwin Barnes, and Dr. H. E. Barnes. The evening was spent socially.

Miss Anne Robinson, of Trabuca, went to Los Angeles yesterday to spend a few days with her sister, Miss Irene, at U. S. C. The latter will accompany her home for the Christmas vacation.

Mrs. A. J. Lawton caught an early-morning car for Los Angeles this morning. She was en route to Glendale to spend the day with her husband.

By WPA funds, the project was launched to provide employment for island citizens after years of fruitless effort to enlist private capital in such an enterprise. (Copyright, 1936)

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

"Who Would Wish to Be Thy King?"

MUCH sentiment is needlessly wasted on former King Edward's romance. Many of our sturdy citizens waxed vehement over the ex-king's troubles and insisted that he be permitted to choose his own wife in his own way. Such freedom of action may go for common folks but not for Britain's king. Many times a day in the past few weeks one heard the question, "Why can't the king do as he pleases about such a personal matter as choosing a wife?"

The obvious reply is that England is a constitutional monarchy. Since that is the case the king must have no will of his own when his responsible ministry has other notions.

But that's old stuff in this modern day," said these friends. That's just the point; it is not old stuff. It is very modern, indeed. The old way was for the king to do as he pleased. Henry VIII picked his wives as often as he wished. He had the will of his own and exercised it as whims or passion dictated. Britain's political liberty has come through centuries of conflict over just this very matter. The result has been that the king is reduced to the merest nothingness. And if he wants to continue in the king business he must acquiesce in this meaningless position.

England's kings have not all been so self-effacing. King John

WE OWN OUR JOBS

To the Editor: In answer to your question, who owns our job? I would say: I think the time is near when every man and woman MUST own their own jobs. Just as we own property now, and regard it as a sacred right, so also should we own our jobs and regard them as our sacred right.

And to attain this end a huge cooperative commonwealth looms before us.

The evil effects of the present strike are felt throughout this entire land of ours, and therefore all the people of our country should take a hand to settle it in a just and democratic way.

THE TWELVE GREATEST?

(Santa Barbara News)

A committee of prominent men, who circumpectly kept their identity secret, had the temerity on the occasion of our hundredth anniversary of the United States patent system, to name a list of the twelve greatest American inventors.

The list, as selected by the committee, was:

Robert Fulton, steamboat.
Eli Whitney, cotton gin.
Samuel F. B. Morse, telegraph.
Charles Goodyear, vulcanized rubber.
Cyrus Hall McCormick, grain reaper.

Elias Howe, sewing machine.
George Westinghouse, air brake.
Alexander Graham Bell, telephone.

Thomas Alva Edison, electric lamp, phonograph, motion pictures and many other devices.
Ottomar Mergenthaler, linotype.
Charles Martin Hall, process for making cheap aluminum.

Wilbur Wright, co-inventor with his brother, Orville, of the airplane.

Twelve outstanding men, beyond question, twelve of the greatest in the scientific development of the modern age. But to state that they are the twelve greatest is to assume a decided responsibility.

Skinny Skribbles

Encountered Joe Stephenson, fraternally and spiritually. My first introduction was through a Santa Ana newspaper. Used to read about his work in Santa Ana long before I had a personal contact. Got the impression then that he was able and unafraid. Heard him preach Sunday night, and I haven't changed my mind. Stephenson's business in late years has been to visit the congregations all over the country for the purpose of encouragement and edification. With all of the sagging social and economic tendencies of the times, he steadfastly clings to his faith and optimism, and radiates to his audience the bright side of life. He has been a most welcome visitor to his former parishioners and to his old Santa Ana friends.

The Fourth street decorations which the wind removed have been replaced by the holiday decorating committee. The decorations are to interfere with the holiday displays, but this time the desert storm, after visiting the orange groves, "went to town" and inflicted some damage to the yuletide mementoes.

This is the season of the year when the wise men are abroad. In these modern times it seems appropriate to compare the early shopper with the Magi. He is wise who selects his gifts early. It is difficult to disassociate the commercial from Christmas, inasmuch as gifts were a bestowal on the part of those who followed the Star. Guess that is where the idea came from, but there is a deeper meaning back of the occasion which has prevailed for more than 1900 years, and it isn't material or intrinsic. It is the deep-abiding spiritual influence which actuates the giving. It isn't so much what the package contains. It is the influence on the heart and soul of the recipient. If you can afford to do so, give something to somebody. You will feel better.

Two citizens exchanging verbal volleys. One proudly declaims his presence at a Sunday evening church service, and the other comes back with: "Oh, so you were at church? You better get before they carried you in!"

Ed McKnight drifted in yesterday just in time to inform me that we had a nice Santa Ana rain. Ed said the rain began to fall in a southerly direction. I moved in a southerly direction. I am not offended with Ed this time, but I informed him that I had a ranch east of Anaheim, and not within the city limits of Santa Ana, and for that matter, I was not at the ranch. So he went to work, placed an order for rain, which was delivered wholesale later in the day.

Ed Cochems threatens to send officers after every member of the Breakfast club if they fail to appear at the Christmas party scheduled for next Thursday morning. You see, Ed wants you to bring a present so it can be carried to the crippled children. That isn't all. He wants you to hear the address by Rev. Harry Owings, to help sing Christmas carols, and to stay away from the meeting the holiday spirit. If you do not take any more than that, it will be enough to enrich your soul for the rest of the year at least. Oh, yes, Santa Claus will be there. He wants to talk to you.

My boss is spinning along over the bleak but frequently trod prairies of Texas en route to Memphis, Tenn., where he expects his parents to put something on the Christmas tree for him. "That's a long way to go for a Christmas present, when the mail trains are running. But Braden wanted a vacation, and a long distance one. Guess he figured out if he got that far away from home someone would have to take the work for him, so he went to do the editorial labor, notwithstanding the fact that it was his birthday anniversary."

Congratulations, Mr. Martin Murray, of Union City, Meach, who had a rain scheduled for Sunday which arrived Monday. Mr. Murray requests, and is entitled to, a variation of one or two days on either side of his predictions. I'm willing to give him a week if he delivers the water.

Honesty may be the best policy, but I prefer to regard it as a virtue. Sometimes we adopt a policy which might have a selfish advantage as the objective. Policies do not always partake of an unselfish motive. Good, old, rugged honesty commends itself. It is always wholesome and upright. It leaves one's soul cleansed and confirmed. It is a good companion for our conscience. Ralph Lambert did not have to return a diamond ring he found worth several hundred dollars, but he had a conviction that prompted him to search for the owner and to see that the property was restored. In this case two people are happy. Ralph, because he was able to return the lost ring, and the owner who recovered it. My young friend works for Jess Herren. He can work for anyone with that kind of integrity.

I'LL STICK A PIN IN HIS BALLOON—THAT SALESMAN MUST BE SAPPY ENOUGH TO HANG A SYRUP BUCKET ON, NOT TO SEE THROUGH HIM!

LISTEN, ROCKEFELLER HOOPLE! GET YOUR ONE MAN-POWER ENGINE TO PERCOLATING, AND DRIVE THE WHEELBARROW OVER TO THE DUTCHMANS, AND GET ME 50 POUNDS OF ICE!

THE SMOOTH PERFORMANCE, RIDABILITY, AND WORKMANSHIP CANNOT BE FOUND IN ANOTHER 8-CYLINDER JOB, AND YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO PASS UP THIS BARGAIN AT $1200—HERE IS MY CARD, I REPRESENT THE BLURB MOTOR SALES SERVICE!

WITH A GRACEFUL SWOOP THE PLANE BEARING MYRA AND CURLY COMES TO REST AT LONDON'S CROYDON FIELD.

TELL ME, CURLY—HOW LONG MUST I WAIT BEFORE WE MEET THE FAMOUS ALLAN BROCKTON?

HE MAY BE HERE TO MEET US—BUT HE HATES TO SHOW HIMSELF IN PUBLIC.

MAY I TAKE YOUR BAGS, MISS? MR. BROCKTON'S CHAUFFEUR, YOU KNOW.

OH, ER... THANKS—OF COURSE...

HELLO?

BUT WHERE IS MR. BROCKTON?

WERE TO MEET HIM LATER, IF YOU DON'T MIND, JUST GET IN PLEASE...

NOW, THEN—WE'RE FAR ENOUGH AWAY FROM THE CROWD TO REMOVE THIS FOILAGE.

MR. BROCKTON! I NEVER THOUGHT YOU'D BE THAT BASHFUL!

ALLAN!

IT'S NOT THAT, MISS NORTH—YOU SEE I... WELL, I CAN EXPLAIN IT BETTER WHEN WE GET HOME TO ENGLAND.

CURLY, HE'S JUST GRAND... ISN'T IT THRILLING?

WAIT TILL YOU SEE HIS HOUSE, MYRA... AND THE FAMOUS MECHANICAL EYE!

THREE QUARTERS OF AN HOUR LATER—

SAY, THIS IS PRETTY GREAT FOR PRETTY PRETTY BUT WE'RE ALMOST THERE, NOW.

HERE WE ARE—I DON'T BELIEVE WE WERE FOLLOWED. SHALL WE ENTER MY HUMBLE ABODE?

IT'S AN OLD ENGLISH MANOR, I'VE CONVERTED FOR MY EXPERIMENTS—YOU'LL FIND IT COMFORTABLE ENOUGH—I'LL HAVE ROUSOFF SHOW YOU TO YOUR ROOMS.

YOU WON'T NEED TO SEARCH THE LADY, ROUSOFF—SHE'S ADRIAN'S, ER... NURSE—IM SORRY, MISS NORTH.

OH, ER... THAT'S ALL RIGHT!
